Good Citizen; Good Son. Thankful? VERY. To Kill Gorillas. Giannini Methods.

— By Arthur Brisbane —

Copyright, 1927, by Star Publishing Co.

S. DAVIES WARFIELD, head of the Seaboard Air Line, an admirable worker for his country, was buried yesterday in Baltimore.

His life of energetic work and building earned the respect and gratitude of his fellow citizens. And they learn with admiration the use to which he has left his fortune, of several millions.

The money will be used to found a home for dependent aged women, in memory of Mr. Warfield's mother, who died many years ago.

A proclamation by the President fixes November 24 as Thanksgiving Day, and mentions some things for which we should be thankful, such as "greater knowledge of the higher values of life" and "advancement in our physical well being."

It may also be mentioned that we are still OUT of the League of Nations, prosperity continues, high wages HAVEN'T gone down while the cost of living HAS gone down.

We may well praise the Lord, for we are fearfully and wonderfully fortunate.

Every prospect pleases. Foreigners buy from us, although our money is high in value.

In September we exported 33,748,000 bushels of wheat, 10,048,000 bushels more than September, 1926. We got, this year, $13,955,000 more than for last year's September wheat exports.

We should be grateful for our blessings.

Miss Alice O'Brien, with a rich father, able to do as she pleases, wants "to hear African drums vibrating through the tropical night along the shores of the Congo," and to see "the weird ceremonies of an African witch doctor."

Most interesting, the young girl thinks she is going to kill gorillas.

That a young girl should want to kill gorillas is not unusual, but we should shudder if we heard that a young gorilla girl was coming forth to kill human girls.

Miss O'Brien, of course, will not really kill any gorilla. Looking into the dark, strange face, she could not shoot. She will visit King Musinga, last of many African potentates, seven feet two inches tall, rich, handsome, with twenty wives—not many in that climate.

The powerful Bank of Italy hands to its stockholders a dividend of 300,000 shares; 250,000 other shares will be offered to stockholders at $180 a share, and the Bancitaly corporation will buy 250,000 shares at the same price. The Giannini Brothers, with their 165 different branch banks in California, buying banks rapidly throughout the country,

YANKEE AVIATRIX CRIES, 'LET ME FIX MY HAIR!' AS CROWDS SEIZE HER

Le Bourget, France, Oct. 28 (A.P.).—Enthusiastic admirers fairly hugged Ruth Elder, American girl flier, from the plane in which she and her co-pilot, George Haldeman, completed today their interrupted journey from New York.

A crowd that had waited for hours flocked around the plane when it taxied into Lindbergh's old hangar here and, after the fashion of the Parisians, hoisted her on its shoulders.

PASTOR SHOOTING HINT TOLD BY MOTHER-IN-LAW

"He brought it the Hall-Mills case and said he might have a shooting on his hands before it was all over."

A crowded room in East Cambridge courtroom today heard Mrs. Anna Rosa, mother of Mrs. Florence A. Downward, declare these words were the words of the Rev. Herbert Daniel Downward, minister of the Swedenborgian Church in Roxbury.

They were uttered, according to Mrs. Rosa, on Sunday last April when the minister called at his mother-in-law's house in Wendell street, Oakdale, and, threatening to take his child away, declared: "I don't give a damn for my wife."

Mrs. Downward, a pretty bob-haired brunette, is suing the minister for divorce and asks alimony and custody of their two-year-old

MRS. GRAYSON SEES CHAMBERLIN

SNAPPED BY AMERICAN IN BOSTON TODAY

Mrs. Frances W. Grayson left her transatlantic plane at Old Orchard today and came to Boston for a conference with Clarence Chamberlain, holder of the world's long-distance flight record, regarding her plans to fly across the sea to Denmark. Chamberlin said he could not pilot "The Dawn" for her, but she is shown here in earnest conversation with the noted airman.

SLAYER SAYS VICTIM, EAST BOSTON MAN, 75, TRIED TO POISON HIM

Stabbed four times with a dirk that was left buried to the hilt in his back, Alesandro Caputto, a seventy-five-year-old grandfather, was slain today in the kitchen of his home in Lamson court, East Boston.

Hiding in a nearby cellar, Giuseppe Paleisi, 37, the alleged slayer, was arrested a few hours later by Sergeant Lackey and Patrolman Walter Russell, who were combing the district in search of him.

CRASH 5,000 FEET UP KILLS 2 NAVAL FLIERS

Pensacola, Fla., Oct. 28 (A.P.).—Two navy officers were instantly killed today when their scout planes crashed in midair and fell 5,000 feet to the ground in the heart of the city.

The fliers, Lieutenant F. C. Frawley and Lieutenant W. J. McCord, were removed from the wreckage dangling on the housetops on which the shattered planes fell.

Both Frawley and McCord were married and lived here with their families. The former was due to be transferred to the Philippines next month. They were flying Curtis Hawks at the time of the collision.

One of the planes fell on a garage while the other crashed through the side of a small house injuring a negro woman.

Frawley's home was at Fulton, N. Y., while McCord formerly lived at St. Louis.

MARBLEHEAD VET, 87, TO TAKE THIRD WIFE

Marblehead, Oct. 28 (A.P.).—Captain Stuart McClearn of Marblehead, eighty-seven-year-old Civil War veteran and medal of honor man, is making plans for his third wedding. His bride will be Miss Anne Shirley, his sister-in-law, who is ten years his junior.

They have filed marriage intentions with the town clerk. The ceremony will take place November 1.

Captain McClearn formerly was chief of police and also served at one time as collector of the port. At the outbreak of the Civil War he responded to President Lincoln's first call for volunteers and served as lieutenant in the Eighth Massachusetts Regiment.

WIFE COMPARED PASTOR TO HALL DEATH VICTIM

child. Judge Chamberlain is hearing the case.

PASTOR DENIES PROFANITY.

Downward, taking the stand himself later in the day, denied ever having used profanity toward his wife.

Describing the visit to his mother-in-law's home in April, the minister declared that when he called his wife opened the door.

"Her greeting, he said, was a mere "ugh." Then she went ahead of him back into a dark room and sat in one corner while a young man, whom the court ordered referred to as "Mr. X," sat in another.

Occasionally, according to the minister, this unidentified young man would cross the room and light a cigarette for Mrs. Downward.

Mrs. Roberts said in her testimony that when the minister, a slim, chestnut-haired and horn-rimmed-glass-wearing man, entered her home on the debated night in April he immediately commented on a new dress his wife was wearing.

CRITICAL OF DRESS.

"He wanted to know who bought it for her," said Mrs. Roberts. "She answered that she made it herself. Then he made some criticism of the baby with respect to the garters being too tight and then again that her hat was down too far over her ears so that her ears stuck out."

Mrs. Roberts testified that on another morning the minister called at her home in Wendell street and, after swearing at his wife, said he would take the baby away from her.

According to the mother-in-law, Downward cursed violently and swore that he would give the baby to his own mother, declaring that he would drag her whole family down to "the mark" and stood in the hallway, shouting back at his wife.

"He used insulting language always," testified the mother-in-law, "and always on leaving the house he would leave her in tears by impressing on her that he was going to take the child away."

Under cross-examination, Mrs. Roberts declared she did not remember whether her daughter was smoking cigarettes at the time.

DENIES "MOVING" STORY.

When re-direct was taken up, Mrs. Roberts testified that, in answer to the Rev. Mr. Downward's alleged remark relative to the Hall-Mills case she told the minister:

"If some wives had you, you would be shot long ago."

The mother-in-law denied that the young man in her house that April Sunday night had aided Mrs. Downward in moving.

Mrs. Gertrude Mowers of Kingsbury street, private secretary for former Governor Eugene N. Foss, testified that she met Downward last Summer at Onset and that the minister made some remarks relative to his wife, his mother-in-law and his child. At the end of Downward's talk, the stenographer testified, she said:

"I hope Mrs. Downward gets a divorce and the custody of the child. He said, 'I hope so too. I don't want either her or the child. I don't care about Mrs. Downward, but I will make it as hard for her as I possibly can and I will drag her through all the mud I can.'"

PUT IT IN WRITING.

Mrs. Mowers said that, following the conversation she made shorthand notes of it and transcribed the notes on the typewriter. She went through this procedure, she declared, because she wanted to tell Mrs. Downward and wanted to be exact in her telling.

With Mrs. Mowers' testimony the wife's side rested, and the Rev. Mr. Downward took the stand as his own first witness.

He testified that he knew his wife six months before they were married and that, because of his marriage with a member of another church, he had difficulty for a year in securing a church. Later, however, he secured a church in Indianapolis for a year and then they returned to Boston.

According to the minister, the first quarrel came two weeks after they were married, when he attempted to give his wife a good time by showing her Faneuil Hall Market on a Saturday night, "at its busiest time."

As they were entering the market, his wife refused to go farther and left him standing on the sidewalk. He said he did not see her for hours.

CALLED AT WIFE'S HOME.

The minister said that his mother stopped living with them in 1923 and had visited them since only about once a week. On these visits, his mother took care of the child and busied herself otherwise about the house.

The minister said that he called at his mother-in-law's home one Sunday, but found his wife out. Later he met her on the street, but she went by instead of talking to him.

Standing outside the apartment of his wife's sister, Downward said, he heard the sister, Margaret Roberts, say:

"Isn't he a peach to come down all the way from North Adams and see you when you are feeling so bad, and to nag your way through beauty school?" The name of a man was mentioned, but Judge Chamberlain directed that the man be referred to as "Mr. X."

"Yes," was the answer of his wife, according to the minister.

TWO GUILTY IN GIRL'S MURDER

Conoway, Mich., Oct. 28 (A.P.)—Mr. and Mrs. Richard Arnott, mother and stepfather of Florence Rioux, pretty 21-year-old stenographer, were convicted of the slaying of the girl last May.

The mother was held by the prosecution to have been actuated by jealousy of attentions paid the girl by Arnott, and the latter to have been animated by fear of legal difficulties due to his wrong doing.

The two, it was charged, pooled their grievances against the victim and clubbed her to death in a lonely road near Rogers City, a lumbering community near here.

N. E. INVENTORS PRODUCE TWO NEW MOTORS

Two new motors, both of which their inventors and sponsors claim will revolutionize the aviation and automotive industries, were announced today from Worcester and Springfield.

One is the "Self-Regenerating Motor," based on the secret of making the current transformer, the machine making its own power and running indefinitely without fuel, batteries or outside sources of supply.

The other is an aerodynamic engine, wholly different in principle from any airplane or marine motor now in use, which looks like a bottle, operates somewhat on the principle of a rocket, and eliminates the use of a propeller and much mechanism.

IDEAL PLANE MOTOR.

The "Self-Regenerating Motor," which is hailed as the long-sought for ideal method of propelling an airplane, is the invention of Henry Lavigne, a magneto expert of Worcester, and was revealed to the Boston Evening American.

Harry N. Atwood of Monson, former noted aviator, is the inventor of the other motor, which he described as a new form of internal combustion engine, that delivers energy by exhaustion of gases into the atmosphere or water, devoid of any other means of propelling mechanism.

In appearance, he says, his machine resembles a large thermos bottle, except that it has a large sub-head, containing orifices for transforming the combustion gases from their high temperatures into the proper velocities.

The exhausted gases, according to Atwood, push the plane ahead, with-

GRANT, FORMER HARVARD STAR, DIES IN FALL

Philadelphia, Oct. 28 (A.P.)—Patrick Grant, former Harvard football player, noted golfer and prominent in banking circles here, was killed today by a fall from the fifth story window of his office building. He was about 46 years old.

Members of the firm of Townsend, Whelan & Co., bankers, with whom Mr. Grant had been associated, expressed belief that Mr. Grant's death was accidental.

When he fell Mr. Grant was hatless, but still had on his overcoat.

The window from which the body came whirling to the street is a long, narrow opening, almost to the floor of the office. It was found open. It was not learned whether anyone was in the office at the time of the fall.

Mr. Grant was a graduate of Harvard, class of 1903, and played on the football team. He was one time holder of the Pennsylvania State golf championship. He was married.

Patrick Grant was the third son of Judge Robert Grant, retired Massachusetts jurist and member of the advisory committee of three that investigated the Sacco-Vanzetti case for Governor Fuller.

Playing centre for Harvard in 1903, he was chosen for the mythical All-American eleven. Subsequently he became interested in aviation, being one of the pioneers in that field. In 1912, while a pilot in Florida, he took Miss Marie Dieton of Philadelphia up as a passenger, and this led to a romance which resulted in marriage the same year.

NOTED AIRMAN NOT TO PILOT 'THE DAWN'

Clarence Chamberlin, the shy but grinning blonde sky-scooter who piloted Charles Levine from New York far into Germany to a long-distance world record, is "too busy" to fly Mrs. Francis Wilson Grayson's big Sikorsky amphibian plane from Old Orchard to Denmark.

The last-June chauffeur of the Bellanca that followed Lindbergh through the air-lanes above the Atlantic, told this both to Mrs. Grayson and to newspapermen today in the Hotel Touraine where, chagrined but still smiling, he admitted defeat in attempting to hold a secret meeting.

MOTORS FROM OLD ORCHARD.

Mrs. Grayson had motored down over the road from Old Orchard, Me., with the Portland representative of a well-known automobile man who sometimes sits in front of a fireplace in Sudbury.

Chamberlin had arrived in Boston on a train that pulled in when the mist was still thick in the Hub and had gone immediately to bed at the Touraine. Mrs. Grayson, chic as ever, arrived at 1 p. m.

"Yes," declared Chamberlin when he was confronted with Mrs. Grayson in the Touraine lobby, "I don't intend to fly the ocean again until a better ship is built. I am certainly not going this year."

Mrs. Grayson then was asked if

SHE PLANNED TO REVEAL HIS CRIME

St. Louis, Oct. 28 (A.P.)—Prosecuting Attorney Charles P. Taft, of Cincinnati, announced today he had evidence that George Remus, millionaire bootlegger, killed his wife, Imogene, because she intended to testify in her divorce suit that Remus murdered an Indiana sheriff in 1923.

Taft, who was here with Charles Elston, Remus' counsel, to take defense depositions in the murder case, said it would be shown Remus had confessed to the Indiana killing and had described it in detail to a State witness whose identity is being kept secret.

The State will show as a motive for Remus murdering his wife, Taft declared, that she had arranged on the day of the killing to lay bare in the divorce hearing the alleged circumstances of the slaying of Sheriff William Van Camp near Brookville, Ind., four years ago.

Her story was that Remus killed Van Camp while running Jack Daniel whiskey from St. Louis to Cincinnati. Brookville is in Franklin County, Ind., not far from the Ohio line and about thirty miles from Cincinnati.

Van Camp's body was found in woods near Brookville shortly after a bank robbery at Greenville, O. The theory of Indiana authorities was that two robbers, now serving terms in the Ohio State penitentiary, killed the sheriff in making their get-away.

KINNY? GIRLS DON'T CARE

By FRANCES L. BAIRD

"What do we care if they call us nny? Statistics are the bunk, r we know better!"

Thus Lynn High school girls ansered Physical Director Richard Schmoyer, who declared that 37 r cent. of them were "undereight and skinny and needed more eep and more substantial food to ring them up to normal."

"He evidently calculated by the standard' weights on the average cales," mused Isabel Hornblower, o. 9 Edgehill road, Lynn. "Certainly, a girl who is five feet, two inches tall would look very clumsy on a dance floor if she weighed the 29 pounds prescribed by the scale charts."

Isabel drinks a quart of milk for lunch and declares that she is not afraid of getting too fat on it.

"And I'm not skinny either," she announced. "I weigh 110, which is plenty for my age. "I'm not afraid of being called skinny."

"Nor I either," echoed Erma Patten, No. 73 Hillside avenue, passing a box of chocolates to Doris Cunningham and Iona Philbrick. "A box of candy a day keeps the director away."

MOSES SOUNDS N. E. WARNING

A bloc system for New England, in order to prevent it being despoiled by less thrifty but ambitious sections of the country, was urged by United States Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, addressing a gathering of prominent Republicans at Boston City Club today.

The Senator said that much as he abhored the bloc system he was compelled to sound this warning because "the bloc system has been so highly developed, so powerful and menacing throughout the country."

"The United States Treasury is running over with wealth," added Senator Moses, "contributed mainly by the thrift and enterprise of ten States. This great wealth is a temptation to less thrifty and less prosperous sections of the country who make eager demands on it.

"The result is that no section of the country pays more for good government than does New England. The bloc system has grown so rapidly in the past few years that it becomes necessary for New England to give serious thought to some form of solidarity by adopting a bloc system to protect itself.

Senator Moses was the guest at a testimonial luncheon tendered by 150 friends and admirers. William E. Brigham, former president of the Gridiron Club, was toastmaster.

MAN, 75, SLAIN IN FIGHT OVER 'POISON' PLOT

Admitting the killing, Fedenza, who was a lodger in Caputto's house, declared in court that he acted to prevent himself from being poisoned.

"I did it in self-defense," he said. "They were trying to poison me and before I'd let them do that I killed him."

Judge Barney of East Boston District Court recorded his plea as not guilty of murder and held him without bail for a hearing on November 4.

MANY HEARD QUARREL.

The slaying of the aged man followed a violent quarrel that aroused other occupants of the house.

The lodger would give no reason for the quarrel, according to the police, except to repeat over and over that he suspected somebody of trying to poison his coffee.

Caputto was slain over the coffee cups. Neighbors who rushed in as Fedenza rushed away from the house found the coffee on the kitchen table, chairs pushed back and ripped over as if both men got up hurriedly—and the dead man lying in a pool of blood, face down, the dirk handle standing up between the shoulder blades.

The victim was stabbed twice in the chest and twice in the back, and any one of the wounds was enough to cause death, according to the police.

The first person aroused by the commotion in the Caputto kitchen, which is on the second floor of the house was Antonio Bellenzia, who lives on the first floor. He heard the scuffling of feet, angry voices, bodies knocking against the furniture and a heavy thud.

The last sound was Caputto fall fire, stabbed to death. Bellenzia by that time was at his door, looking up the dark, narrow staircase. The door at the top of the steps was torn open and Fedenza came scurrying down.

"Get a glass of water. The old man is fallen and hit his head" cried Fedenza, according to Bellenzia.

Bellenzia ran to get the water, but he suspected something worse had happened to Caputto and shouted at the top of his voice, alarming other neighbors, who were already awakened by the unaccustomed noise.

ARRESTED IN CELLAR.

In varied night attire the neighbors arrived on the run and Bellenzia led them upstairs, the glass of water in his hand. The gas was still burning in Caputto's kitchen and they saw what had happened as soon as they entered the door.

Fedenza was gone, but some of those who responded to Bellenzia's cries told the police he had lingered long enough to talk of the trouble about the coffee.

Armed with a description of him, police scoured the district after daylight, when they found Fedenza, hatless and coatless and badly frightened, hiding in a cellar a few blocks away. Sergeants Graham and Ingalls and Special Officers Connelly and Finnelly took part in the search. The description was also sent to all other Boston police stations.

Meanwhile Dr. Charles Maloni of Chelsea street had pronounced Caputto dead and the medical examiner took charge of the body for an autopsy.

Caputto leaves a daughter, Mrs. Jennie Crocitti, living in Webster street, East Boston.

HELD IN TRY TO KILL WIFE WITH FLATIRON

On charges of assault with intent to murder his wife and assault and battery upon her woman companion Hugh McGrath twenty-six, of No. 121 Reed street, Cambridge, was held in $5,000 bonds for the Grand Jury in East Cambridge District Court today.

Last August, police testified, McGrath ran amuck in his home after a drunken spree and flung a flatiron at his wife, striking and fracturing her skull. She spent several months at the hospital as a result.

Edith Fessler of No. 77 Elm street, who was visiting Mrs. McGrath at the time, was struck by the blade of the iron. She received four broken fingers.

JUDGE F. S. HALL, 66, IS DEAD AT TAUNTON

New Bedford, Oct. 28 (A.P.)—Judge Frederick S. Hall, 66, of Taunton, for 25 years counsel of Bristol county, died at his home in Taunton this morning. Death followed two years of declining health.

Judge Hall was graduated from Harvard in 1882 and from Boston University law in 1885.

Mr. Hall was elected to the Legislature at 26. He served two years. In 1904 and 1905 he was a member of the Governor's council. In the latter year he sought the Republican nomination for Lieutenant-Governor of Eben S. Draper won the place.

There Are Dogs and Dogs and Hunters Who Can't Hunt

Brockton, Oct. 28.—This is a bird dog story, told by a newspaperman. Roger D. Wheeler, county editor of the Brockton Times, who lives in Main street, Bridgewater, took a day off and went gunning. He was accompanied by an English setter.

On two different occasions the dog pointed a quail, but Wheeler missed. He says the third time the dog pointed, Wheeler couldn't see a bird.

He ordered the dog on. The setter refused to obey. Wheeler commanded the setter to go ahead. Hank insubordination on the part of the dog.

And then, but this is terrible, we tell our fans as we tell it. Then, after an anguished and reproachful look into the full face of its master, the dog pounced on a quail in the grass, slapped it down with one paw, and then, taking the bird in its mouth, placed it at the feet of Wheeler and laid it there.

BARE $106,000 DEFICIT IN FITCHBURG

A bookkeeping revenue deficit of $106,111.98, and overdrawn accounts aggregating $8,296.56 in Fitchburg, were today reported to Mayor Joseph A. Lewis and the city council by Theodore N. Waddell, director of accounts in the State Division of Taxation and Corporations.

The financial condition, revealed by an audit made by State accountants, is the result of "unbusinesslike methods" and "flagrant violations of the municipal finance laws," Waddell charged.

He recommended that the mayor and council give "serious consideration" to the existing state of affairs there.

Stock for various departments, he accused, has been purchased without appropriation.

"The revenue deficit has also been caused, in part, by the practice of making appropriations for overdrafts and other purposes from surplus revenue, when there was no actual surplus available, the surplus account as shown by the auditor's books being made up entirely of the stock account and outstanding accounts receivable, and not available for appropriation," he pointed out.

In checking appropriation accounts, he reported, it was discovered that the amounts credited to several accounts differed from the amounts voted by the City Council.

Many appropriations, he revealed, were overdrawn "presumably with the expectation that funds would be provided before the close of the fiscal year."

The practice of buying materials and supplies as stock for future use without an appropriation, he said, has been carried on by the public works, water, auditor's and city clerk's departments.

TRUNK LINE HEADS DISCUSS MERGERS

New York, Oct. 28 (A.P.)—Representatives of the trunk line railroads are in New York today for an important conference relating to the consolidation problems in their territories. They include Patrick E. Crowley, president of the New York Central; W. W. Atterbury, head of the Pennsylvania Railroad; John J. Bernet, president of the Erie Railroad, representing the Van Sweringen interests; Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio, and L. F. Loree, the latter attending for the first time.

The entrance of Mr. Loree into the deliberations is attributed in Wall street to a change in recent months of the attitude of opposition shown by the Pennsylvania Railroad officials to Mr. Loree's fifth trunk line proposal.

SOMEBODY "PINCHED" GLEASON'S TYPEWRITER

Poor Jim Gleason! For a red-headed probation officer he's been a kindly and understanding soul all these years, but now, even though surrounded by police and the stalwarts of South Boston jurisprudence—Judges Logan and Day—someone has pinched his typewriter.

Today he tripped unsuspectingly into South Boston Court and walked over to his typewriter desk. He lifted the cover, all unaware.

Then he gasped—a—nd called a policeman. The typewriter was gone.

"Officer," he pleaded, "call a cop."

SEES REMEDY IN CORRECT TRAINING

Faulty training and education of youths is one of the chief things ailing New England, Clarence W. Barron, publisher of the Boston News Bureau, and international authority on finance and business, declared in an address before the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers. Speaking on "What Ails New England," he said:

The subject of "What Ails New England" must be considered on lines of business and finance.

There is nothing especially the matter with New England, organically, politically, socially, or geographically, although President Mellen of the New Haven Road used to declare to me that New England would be better off if the Hudson River were also the Atlantic Ocean and New England, like old England, were isolated geographically from the continent, and therefore compelled to develop and trade as a unit.

New England in early days fished the shores, sailed the seas, introduced tea to India and brought teas and silks from China in the fastest sailing ships the world had ever known.

She has always led in the agitation for human freedom, development of human rights, citizenship equality for black and white. She has stood for manhood rights and the dignity of labor and led in the unshackling of the black man.

New England pioneered to the Pacific overland by coach and around the Horn by ships.

The ship Columbia, built on the marshes near Hanover, Massachusetts, discovered the great river Oregon and named it the Columbia.

For more than one generation the Indians in the Northwest knew a white man only as a Boston man.

New Bedford gathered wealth from whales in the Arctic, and New England ships were known in Africa, India and Asia.

At the close of our Civil War we found American names, such as Forbes and Dickerson, no longer on the ocean but leading in our great western railroad development.

The western prairies were fertilized with New England money, the dividend returns of which eventually brought home millions in wealth to New England.

The telegraph and the telephone were both invented in New England.

New England is still a great shoe manufacturing centre, and New England capital and brains have, of late, been poured into the United Fruit Company, giving employment to 70,000 people over the earth, and bringing home to New England millions in dividends.

THE DIAGNOSIS

The country is asking "What ails New England?" I will endeavor to answer from some years of necessary study and reflection upon New Englands problems, and my answer is:

First: Orphanitis, the disease which kills great corporations, destroys initiative and limits growth and expansion. We are all endeavoring to pass property on to the widow and the orphan. We really pass it on to a trusteeship for them, where conservation must take the place of creation.

Second: New England has fruited and the rest of the country has grown on, so that New England's relative importance is diminished as it should be.

Third: Our unwholesome and unsound educational system.

From 65 per cent. of total cotton goods product in 1860 New England has come down to 26 per cent.

New England is still a great, if not the great, manufacturing center of the United States. Our late war found New England the tool makers and the machine makers for the country, and thence for the world at war. Nowhere in the United States is there such a diversity of manufacturing interests as in New England. Nowhere is there such a diversity in skilled labor and technical training.

New England has fruited into art, education and finance.

A university could never have brought forth a Vanderbilt in transportation, a Rockefeller in oil, an Edison with more than a thousand inventions, or a Henry Ford with pioneering genius in a new form of transportation with more than 10,000,000 motors to his credit, or 40 per cent. of the world's output.

A university could have killed, by negations and deflections of their active minds into books and libraries, the individual initiative that has been given the world its greatest modern services.

The Heidelberg professor told the Wright brothers that the reason they invented the airplane was because they had not been educated to know that it could not be done. The curse of higher education to the business world is the curse of the government in business—its negations and deflections.

COTTON PROBLEM

A business and financial training should not be cut off from the university course; it should be knit up with it. Every college president, every instructor, every professor, needs it. The scientific man, the man of society and leisure, need it.

The so-called higher education does not now require a mastery of the two fundamentals that must sustain the work of the university—a knowledge of life as respects physical health and as respects business or financial support and defense.

The aim of education should be not only truth, but the service of truth. In the passing age of theology the emphasis was on truth. In the New-Age and the new theology the emphasis will be on service.

But, primarily, education wherever obtained should give one the mastery of the tools of one's trade or service.

HARDING TO REST IN NEW MAUSOLEUM

Marion, Ohio, Oct. 28.—The bodies of the late President Harding and his wife will probably be removed from the Marion cemetery vault on Armistice Day, to the new $500,000 marble memorial mausoleum here, it was announced

YEAR'S FIRST SMALLPOX CASE AT PLAINVILLE

The first case of smallpox in the State this year was reported today to State Health Commissioner George H. Bigelow from Plainville. The victim is 12-y ar-old Mildred Sylvia. She is being treated at the Providence City Hospital, where two weeks ago she was discharged after treatment for infantile paralysis.

SON-IN-LAW OF FALL IMMUNE IN OIL TRIAL

Washington, Oct. 28 (A.P.).—The government was stopped today by Justice Siddons from forcing M. T. Everhart, son-in-law of Albert B. Fall to disclose the source of the $230,500 in Liberty Bonds figuring in the Teapot Dome oil conspiracy trial.

Justice Siddons said it might be that the answer to the question would disclose to government counsel for the first time that Everhart was in fact a co-conspirator.

"I cannot be satisfied in my own mind that an answer to the question might not lead to peril for the witness," the court said, "and I shall sustain objection to the question."

DECLINED TO ANSWER.

Everhart had declined to answer on the ground that such testimony would tend to incriminate him.

It was from Everhart that the government had hoped to produce the connecting link between the bonds and Harry F. Sinclair, co-defendant with Fall, for whose benefit the government charges most of the bonds were used after the wealthy oil operator had come into possession of the naval oil reserve in Wyoming.

TRACES $300,000 BONDS.

After Everhart was excused Roberts, through a dozen other witnesses, traced movements of bonds to Pueblo, Colo., Denver, and El Paso, Tex., where Fall had an account, and finally brought into the picture the Continental Trading Company, Ltd., of Canada, with which the government contends Sinclair was identified, and gained testimony that $300,000 in Liberty bonds had been obtained in New York in the name of that company and taken away by H. S. Osler, one of its officers, in a brown package.

The government charges that a part of these bonds finally found their way to Fall through Everhart when the latter made a trip to New York after the Teapot Dome lease was signed.

OFFICER BAGS 3 IN CAR FROM MICHIGAN

Something may develop some day through Motorcycle Officer Arthur J. Swanson's intuitions and suspicions—a pair of such mental murmurings early today netting him a Michigan automobile, three captives, a loaded automatic pistol and the number of a second Michigan car.

Officer Swanson, attached to the West Roxbury station, was walking along Centre street in the nocturnal mist when the first car with Michigan plates passe dhim, fanning up his suspicions.

He chased it a short distance and ordered the driver to pull up. Just for good luck he searched the car and found the weapon under the back seat. So he placed under arrest Dave Willard, who said he was a Detroit boxer; Anthony DaGosta, also claiming Detroit, and Alfred Noble, who first claimed to be from Detroit but later admitted a Providence address.

As the officer was grubbing about in the machine, another car rolled along, swung in toward the halted one, slowed down, but, then, apparently just sighting the motorcycle through the mist, speeded up again and was gone, but not before Swanson caught the number of the Michigan plate.

After delivering his prisoners the officer resumed his tour and found a loaded .38 calibre revolver on the sidewalk about 100 yards beyond where he had stopped the first car.

SHOWERS DUE HERE TONIGHT

A storm area, which moved through the night from Minnesota to Northern New York, threatens this section with showers within twenty-four hours, but the local Weather Bureau predicts cloudy skies hereabouts as the only indication of its proximity.

Elsewhere throughout the country, with the exception of the Pacific Coast, sunny skies and moderately high temperatures prevail.

Forecast for Boston and vicinity: Partly cloudy tonight and Saturday, possibly with showers tonight; not much change in temperature; moderate westerly winds.

EXPERTS BEATEN, WOMAN SOLVES SUBWAY PUZZLE

New York, Oct. 28 (A. P.)—A woman "strap hanger" has solved an underground traffic problem that has baffled experts—the handling of immense crowds that daily struggle through the shuttle connecting the subway stations between Times Square and the Grand Central.

When the shuttle was first installed, the traffic experts, in order to guide the crowds to the right trains, painted black and green arrows on the ceiling. The scheme was not altogether successful.

Recently, Miss J. C. Phillips wrote a New York paper and suggested that the arrows be substituted by strings of colored lights on the ceiling. It was often impossible, she said, to distinguish the color of the arrows because of the dim light in the underground passages.

When traffic experts read her letter they seized upon the idea, tested it and found it practical.

ALL WORK AND NO PLAY LED BOY TO JAIL

New York, Oct. 28 (A.P.)—A 19-year-old youth who worked two jobs a day and one on Sunday and who slept in subway stations to save the price of lodgings today was aided by an investigation of the chief city magistrate and a lawyer furnished by anonymous influential friends in his fight to escape a workhouse sentence imposed after he was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct for sleeping on a subway bench.

A plea before the Court of Special Sessions today was set by Attorney T. A. Eager as the first move in the fight for the release of James Moore, 19, of Lawrence, Mass., after Chief Magistrate McAdoo announced he had been told the boy would be released in custody of counsel pending review of his case.

Magistrate McAdoo said the boy was of "questionable mentality," although of "unusual and phenomenal thrift."

Attorney Eager denied the boy was of "questionable mentality," and explained "that no one could be more sane than this lad."

Eager said he would ask for a certificate of doubt so that the boy could be released on bail. Moore had been working as a cement mixer during the week and a golf caddy on Sunday. He earned his meals, he asserted, by washing dishes in restaurants, and further saved money by getting his hair cut at a barber's college.

The boy told of sending money to his mother in Lawrence from a $600 account he had in the bank. Telegrams received by authorities confirmed this statement.

RUMAN TROOPS CLASH WITH 'CAROLISTS'

Belgrade, Jugoslavia, Oct. 28 (A.P.).—Government troops have come into collision at Kishinev, Bessarabia, with national peasants who had been informed that Prince Carol was in Rumania commanding an army, says reports received here from Bucharest. Numerous arrests were made.

Bucharest, Rumania, Oct. 28 (A.P.).—Further arrests are being made throughout Rumania in connection with the plot to restore Prince Carol to the throne.

At Jassy, former Perfect Axinte was arrested for printing several hundred copies of an interview which Carol gave the Paris Matin, shortly after King Ferdinand's death, in which the former Crown Prince declared his willingness to return if his people called him.

The premises of the former chief of police of Jassy were raided.

Former Deputy Daniela Vasiliu was arrested at Brasov and former Mayor Bocancea of the town of Gerghita was held, charged with complicity in a Carolist conspiracy.

All the arrested men were sent to Bucharest for further examination.

Paris, Oct. 28 (A.P.).—Theft of a packet of letters giving a list of Rumanians who were Prince Carol's friends in France was reported today to the police by members of Prince Carol's household at Neuilly.

The police have begun an investigation.

200-YEAR-OLD LAW CITED TO ANNUL MARRIAGE

The question of whether the Suffolk Probate Court has jurisdiction to annul the marriage of Thomas M. Cassin to Helen M. Gardner has been referred by Judge McCoole to the Supreme Court.

It is the first case of the kind in Massachusetts and the only precedent found is a decision of an English court nearly 200 years ago. Cassin claims his wife told him she was a widow, when in fact she had been divorced, and says that unless the marriage is annulled he will be barred from further marriage in the Roman Catholic Church.

REVERE WANTS YOUNG MAN FOR SERGEANT

In his hope to secure a youthful successor to the late Sergeant John L. Blythe, Mayor John E. Wade of Revere today notified Chief of Police J. Tighe that he had postponed the examination for the vacancy until January. In the meantime, Cornelius F. Cronin, will act as sergeant.

The postponement will enable three recent appointees to the department, Patrolmen Rogers, Barry and Nolan, to take the test.

ACCUSED OF PASSING 18 WORTHLESS CHECKS

Ten new charges of passing worthless checks on downtown stores were added against Frank M. Loveridge while he was testifying in Central Police Court today relative to eight other smaller counts.

HEARST TROPHY IN RIFLE MATCH APPROVED

The design for the William Randolph Hearst sectional trophy to be awarded in the National R. O. T. C. Rifle match to universities and colleges, high schools and military academies winning in each of the four sections of the country has been approved by the War Department.

The sectional trophy is a silver shield mounted on ebony. It measures three feet one inch in height, and two feet one inch in width. It has been declared by those in charge of the rifle competition the finest award ever given in such a match.

The centre of the shield contains a reproduction of the official target used in the firing and will be engraved with the name of the institution winning it.

The plaque at the bottom provides space for the names of the members of the winning team. The centre design is surmounted by the shield of the United States, crossed guns, crossed flags, and a spread-winged eagle. On one side is the lamp of knowledge and on the other the book of learning.

One such trophy will be awarded to the winning university, the winning high school, and the winning military academy in each of the four sections of the country in which the meet is being conducted by the War Department, and these trophies will remain the permanent holdings of the institutions which win them.

COON SHOUTER SOPHIE GOING INTO FILMS

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS,
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service.

The perennial Sophie Tucker, world famous coon shouter and the lady whose pep is contagious, is considering the movies.

With enough vaudeville engagements to keep her busy fifty-two weeks in the year, the vivacious Sophie has a hankering to try her luck on the silver screen. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is the company said to be dickering for her services.

JETTA GOES BACK.

The effervescent Jetta Goudal, who left the Cecil De Mille lot after a stormy session with the producer, may return to her erstwhile boss. Mr. De Mille is wise enough to know that Miss Goudal is a fine actress, even though she is an emotional cocktail, who bubbles over at the slightest provocation. On the other hand, Miss Goudal is wise enough to know that she'll get a better break at the De Mille studio than anywhere else.

The sky trip of Raymond Hatton and his co-starring pal, Wallace Beery, was apparently more than just a little aeroplane ride to Chicago. Monsieurs Beery and Hatton are about to invest their savings in the Maddux Air Company. From Chicago they will go to Detroit and talk business with the Ford Company owners of the Maddux Air Transportation Company.

KYNE STORY NEXT.

Peter B. Kyne's serial, "Tide of Empire," running in the Cosmopolitan Magazine, has been followed by Irving Thalberg with breathless interest. When a busy man like the general manager of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studios gets his nose in a story and keeps it there it means only one thing, and that is that he is visualizing it as a movie while he reads.

You've guessed the secret. M. G. M. has purchased "Tide of Empire," and, if present plans materialize, it will be a special for 1928 release. The movie version will be called "The Argonaut," and a plan is now being hatched to give James Murray the leading role.

HUB RETAIL MEN WILL ATTEND CONFERENCE

The following merchants have been appointed delegates from the Retail Board of Trade of the Boston Chamber of Commerce to the New England conference in Springfield November 17-18, 1927: Felix Vorenburg, president Gilchrist Company; S. S. Conrad, president Conrad & Co.; Adolph Erhlich, president C. F. Hovey & Co.

Has $2,000,000 Surplus

Fall River, Oct. 28.—A $2,000,000 surplus was reported by the King Philip mills, one of the most prosperous textile corporations in the city, at its annual meeting today.

Finding Ores by Radio Effected by Chicago College Head

New York, Oct. 27 (A. P.)—To add to the puzzling perplexities of twentieth century inventive genius came President Max Mason of the University of Chicago tonight to inform an engineering group of successful experiments in locating buried ore by radio.

The physicist sets up his sending and receiving set after his party of engineers has cleared the surface of brush. Then he sends a message down into the earth and the rocks and ore send back signals in reply. Such messages, properly transmitted and intelligently deciphered, pass through the earth about as readily as a sound travels the air.

WOMAN GIVEN JAIL TERM FOR TIPSY DRIVING

The vigilance of Patrolman Quinn of Cambridge was responsible for a one-month sentence to the House of Correction imposed on Louise Palmer, a comely matron of 40, of the fashionable Fenway, by Judge Stone in East Cambridge District Court, on charges of operating an auto under the influence of liquor. She appealed and bail was set at $300.

The officer testified that he came upon her parked machine with lights out on Concord street. Her actions aroused his suspicions. He smelled her breath and then arrested her, he said.

BOSTON GREETS TEACHERS OF MIDDLESEX

Hundreds of school teachers filled four halls in Boston today in the 73d annual meeting of the Middlesex County Teachers' Association.

At Converse Hall, Tremont Temple, where Charles S. Clark was chairman, William Mather Lewis, president of Lafayette College, spoke on "Filling the Gaps." Another speaker was Payson Smith of Boston, State Commissioner of Education.

Tremont Theatre was the scene of addresses by Helen Parkhurst, educational director of the Dalton schools, and President James L. McConaughy of Wesleyan University. "Extra Curricular Activities" was the subject of an address by Emma V. Tindal of Philadelphia at the Colonial Theatre, and Prof. Jesse B. Davis of Boston University spoke on "The Articulation of Senior and Junior High Schools."

Dr. Merrill E. Champion, director of the division of hygiene, State Department of Public Health, and Regina Feeney, home demonstration agent of Middlesex county, addressed the gathering at Gardner Auditorium in the State House.

3 BOB-HAIRED BEAUTIES FIGURE IN ROBBERY

Lawrence, Oct. 28 (A.P.).—Peter Klimas, 40 mill worker complained to police today that he was held up and robbed at gunpoint of his weekly pay of $20 off-wing a party in a house on the outskirts of the city.

Three bobbed-haired and attractive women were included among those present at the time, the victim told authorities.

RUTH SPURNS WINE AS PARIS GREETS HER

Her chief concern as the clamoring mob swept across the field to the office of the commandant seemed to be for her appearance.

"Let me fix my hair," she cried as they neared the field's headquarters.

Her brown curls were waving in the breeze and she was dressed in the brilliant red sweater and checkered plus fours in which she started to fly across the Atlantic.

Miss Elder's first words after the plane alighted were: "Good! Good!" which she promptly translated into "Bon! Tres bon!"

Then as the crowd cheered and lifted her to its shoulders she called out to a representative of the Associated Press: "I surely did not expect this."

At field headquarters Commandant Renvoise greeted her with: "We welcome you in the name of French aviation."

"Tell him it's mutual," responded Miss Elder.

Her companion flier modestly effaced himself and was practically lost for a time in the crowd that ignored him in its wild enthusiasm for the girl.

As the crowd moved over the field, Haldeman remained behind to tinker with the motor, his face rather forlorn in contrast with Ruth's cheery smiles.

"What's on your mind?" Haldeman was asked.

"Don't mind me," Haldeman replied with a wistful smile. "I'm just a mechanic."

Women had kissed and hugged Ruth but Haldeman, covered with oil, apparently was just a plain airman to everybody.

The crowd had already given Ruth a pet name: "The Happy Midinette from America."

This name was coined within five minutes after she landed on the famous field within a few feet of the spot where Charles A. Lindbergh ended his epoch-making nonstop flight across the Atlantic.

As Miss Elder slid down the fuselage of the Potez plane her face was beaming and she was ablaze with excitement. A high-pitched feminine voice arose above the noise of the crowd estimated to number 5,000 persons, crying: "She looks just like a Midinette on a holiday."

This was promptly taken up by the throng which cheered, "Long live the American Midinette."

Champagne was served at the reception at the Le Bourget air field. Miss Elder, flushing beneath her coat of tan, demurred.

"No, thank you, I don't drink wine," she said and then had a small bottle of water.

Haldeman, on the other hand, neither blinked nor objected and drank his glass as if he relished it.

Then the entire party left for Paris where the first of a series of receptions had been arranged.

"Are you going home tomorrow?" Miss Elder was asked.

"No! No! I'll say I'm not," she answered. "I am staying at least a week. I'm going to start Monday, bright and early, to do my shopping. You don't think I'd leave Paris without doing that do you?"

Lisbon's Greeting Amazes Ruth

By Ruth Elder

Special Cable Dispatch.

LISBON, Oct. 28.—The captain of the S. S. Lima had cut down our speed so that we would not arrive in port of Lisbon ahead of time.

While George and I were on deck trying to get a glimpse of the city we were about to enter, we suddenly spied a large single motored seaplane flying low and coming toward us.

The plane circled very low as it passed over the ship and we recognized it as being the German Junker plane which was expected to leave Lisbon shortly for the Azores, from where it was to make a final hop to America.

In a few minutes more planes arrived, and as they circled and darted over our ship, I longed to be up there with them.

Our attention was particularly attracted to one Portuguese army plane which flew very low over us several times to drop bunches of roses on the deck of the Lima. Many of the sailors and passengers gathered the blossoms and brought them to me.

GREETED BY CONSUL

When we were very near the landing dock, the army flier made one final swoop, and, throttling down his motor, he leaned over the cockpit to call down his greetings. We all waved in response.

By this time launches and small tugs were swarming about us. The captain stopped the Lima to take aboard the pilot, with whom came many newspapermen and photographers.

We recognized many Americans. A huge delegation of our country men was at hand. We were particularly glad to meet the American minister to Lisbon, Fred Morris Dearing, with whom we were to stay while in Lisbon.

With Mr. Dearing were Walter Thurston, secretary of the legation; Joseph Walsh and several other Americans.

Senor Cilka Duarte, commander of the air force of Portugal, and the officers of his staff, including Sarmento Beires and Cabeita Correia, noted Portuguese aviators who have successfully made long flights across water were there.

Commander Duarte welcomed us on behalf of the Aero Club of Portugal and Spain and the Portuguese air service. We felt highly honored to meet these officers and feeling their welcome.

By this time the Lima had docked and we were being greeted by hundreds of people on shore.

RUTH LIKES LISBON

After saying our good byes to Captain Pinto and his officers on the Lima, all of them, we certainly hated to leave, Minister Dearing and the air service officers escorted us to waiting limousines, in which we were driven to the palace of the Portuguese republic, where we met General Carmona, the president. He was a wonderful man, and George and I were delighted to have had an opportunity to meet him.

We paid our respects and left the palace for the American legation, where we immediately felt at home after having been presented to Mrs. Dearing.

I liked Lisbon as soon as I saw its skyline from the deck of the Lima, and, since we are stopping with the Dearings I am sure we will have a pleasant stay while here. If it compares with the time we had on the Lima there will be no cause for complaint.

On Monday night after we had left Madeira Island we were pleased to learn that we were to have music with our meals. A young Portuguese senor had brought a Victrola from Madeira. We enjoyed several Portuguese songs, then he played some American jazz including such numbers as, "I Want to Be Happy," "Knee Deep in Daisies," "Dinah" and several other tunes.

After dinner I went on deck and did the customary mile before join ing George in Captain Pinto's cabin. With much pride the captain displayed a new Victrola which he had purchased in Madeira.

Later we went below deck and found a great many of the stewards dancing. We joined them and had a lot of fun. One couple danced the Argentinian tango beautifully.

SPRAINED ANKLE

A Portuguese and I gave them a poor exhibition of the Charleston.

We had a very cosmopolitan crowd on board. People from France, Italy, Spain, England, Portugal, Germany and wherenot. Though I am terribly anxious to reach Paris, I shall hate to see this journey come to an end.

When the dance was over we went up to the officers' bridge to bid good night to Carlos Good night. He is a most likeable young fellow and has acted as interpreter, guide and companion to us. We have thoroughly enjoyed knowing him.

Next morning we were invited up on deck to have pictures made with the officers of the boat, and had a jolly time.

We have two camera men on board, and I was afraid to stick my head out of the cabin unless I was all primped up, for they will insist on having their pictures.

Even though I was hobbling around with a sprained ankle, they incessantly took pictures of me going up and down steps. I am sure that I will prove to be most awkward and clumsy in them.

I had doctored my ankle frantically so that I might be able to walk without limping when we reached Lisbon.

SIGHTS LAND

What do you say—the vanity of women?

Oh well, I suppose you're right, but who wants to be laughed at and in a strange country to make it worse?

Our last dinner aboard the Lima was a bit more lively than the others had been as we were to reach our destination, Lisbon, at four o'clock, and everyone was in bright spirits.

It was a wonderful clear day with remarkable visibility. We were able to sight the coast of Portugal about two o'clock. Land surely looked good to me.

I could not help but let my thoughts turn back to our American girl, which had rattled that terrible storm and had apparently tried so hard to bring us to this beautiful coast of Portugal after we had been forced off our course.

But in another hour we were in the bay and in a few minutes the jetty

CHAMBERLIN IS TOO BUSY TO FLY GRAYSON PLANE

her pilot and navigator, respectively Wilmer Stultz and Price Goldsborough, knew that she intended asking Chamberlin to pilot the Bellanca on its fourth attempt to climb up over the waters and point toward Copenhagen.

"I have not asked him," she replied, evasively, as she had previously answered evasively at Old Orchard when questioned relative to her intentions in her then unconfirmed trip to the Tuileries for the Chamberlin interview.

Mr. Stultz and Mr. Goldsborough were fully aware that I intended conferring with Mr. Chamberlin in Boston. I have a great deal of confidence in Mr. Chamberlain's ability and experience and I will return after my conference to Old Orchard and think over what he has told me. Then I will arrive at a decision as to a fourth attempt to reach Denmark.

"The weather was unusually bad today. All eight ships which reporter to us described conditions as very bad. Yesterday was bad. But last Saturday, perhaps, there was the greatest break in the year. The weather was perfect all the way across and a good west wind that would almost blow you in."

Before going into the serious conference for which Mrs. Grayson had made the trip to Boston, Chamberlin confided to newspapermen that he had succeeded in ending his contract with Charles Levine two or three days ago.

According to Chamberlin the contract contained "certain odious stipulations" to which Chamberlin objected.

4 HURT AS AUTO UPSETS WHEN TIRE BLOWS OUT

Westfield, Mass., Oct. 28 (A.P.).—Four persons, all of Williamantic, Conn., were injured near this city today when a sedan in which they were riding overturned. The accident was caused by the blowing out of a tire while passing a truck.

The car was driven by Charles L. Crase and the others in it were Mrs. Crase and Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Fitchthorn. Mrs. Crase and Mr. Fitchthorn were brought to Noble Hospital here.

MORRIS CHOSEN HEAD OF BRISTOL TEACHERS

Fall River, Oct. 28 (A.P.).—George Morris, superintendent of schools of North Attleboro, was this morning elected president of the Bristol County teachers convention.

Others elected were William F. Eastwood of Attleboro and Arthur G. Mott of North Attleboro, Florence McNamara of Taunton, vice-presidents; Miss Mildred V. Carroll of Fall River secretary, and Charles A. Hathaway of Taunton, treasurer.

THOMPSON BIDS N. E. MAYORS INTO LEAGUE

Telegraphic invitations were issued to mayors of the leading cities of the United States by Mayor William Hale Thompson of Chicago, inviting municipal heads to join a national patriotic organization which has been named the "America First Foundation."

Mayor Thompson, who has been conspicuously in the news in recent days through his endeavors to purge the Chicago libraries and schools of pro-British histories, says in his telegram:

"Will you join in the establishment of the American First Foundation, a national organization for better citizenship based on loyalty and patriotism, with a nonpolitical educational program to teach the Constitution of the United States and respect for our form of government and thorough knowledge of its fundamental laws and to build the coming generation, native and foreign born, by a study of American ideals? Membership $10."

Mayor Ralph S. Bauer of Lynn was one of the first of the Bay State mayors to receive Thompson's invitation. Others who received the telegram were Mayors Edward W. Quinn of Cambridge and Fordis C. Parker of Springfield.

In all cases the mayors refrained from taking immediate advantage of Mayor Thompson's offer, preferring to await more complete information before forwarding their membership fees.

ANIMAL RESCUE LEAGUE SEEKS AID FOR FAIR

An appeal for support for the 55th annual fair of the Animal Rescue League to be held in the ballroom of the Copley Plaza Hotel December 5 and 6 was sent out today by Mrs. Huntington Smith, president of the league, and the executive committee of prominent Boston men and women.

More than 40,000 cats, more than 6,000 dogs and several hundred horses and other animals were humanely cared for during the past two months by the league, Mrs. Smith declared in her appeal.

Articles which can be sold at the fair, or contributions of money are asked and checks should be made payable to the Animal Rescue League, the headquarters of which are at No. 81 Carver street.

"Many of the animals cared for were in sad plight through hunger, abuse and disease, states the pamphlet enclosing the appeal. "Women who give cross female cats and dogs, little kitten and puppies caring for nothing except to get rid of them and with no thought as to what they may suffer are responsible for a vast amount of this misery.

"Last year the Fair added to our treasury, which was greatly depleted by the Summer's work, $10,000, and this year we have set our sights at $12,000. Will you not help us to reach this mark? Will you not try to get new helpers for us?

"Money, books, jewelry, Christmas cards, pin cushions, laundry bags, shoe bags, dress covers, soda pickles, preserves, cake, candy. In fact all sorts of useful and fancy articles will be acceptable. Send us books you have read through the summer. We would like handkerchiefs both for men and women for the Handkerchief Table. We need smaller articles for men and we are in great need of toys for the children's table."

PRINCE GETS ANNUITY ON EVE OF WEDDING

Naples, Italy, Oct. 28 (A.P.)—Prince Amadeo of Savoy, Duke of Aosta, fiance of Princess Anne of France, woke up this morning to find a wedding present in his stocking.

It was a governmental decree granting him an annuity of 400,000 lire (roughly $21,840 yearly) effective the day after the publication in the decree in the official gazette which makes it fall due the week before the wedding, November 4, at Naples.

SKYSCRAPERS CUT WINDY FROM CHICAGO'S TITLE

Chicago, Oct. 28 (A.P.)—Today's question: What place is known as the "windy city"? Answer: Chicago. But is it?

Prof. Henry J. Cox, chief United States meteorologist here, says Chicago may once have been the "windy city" but is so no longer—speaking meteorologically, of course.

Back in 1922 the average wind velocity, Mr. Cox said, was 13.4 miles an hour. Since then however Chicago has builded upward and her skyscrapers and tall structures have formed an effective breakwater.

In 1900 the velocity averaged 16.6. Five years later it was 15.4. In 1910 it dropped to 14.2, in 1922 to 13.4 and in 1925 to comparative calm of 12.9.

MAGRUDER CASE STIRS 'ECONOMY WAR' IN CAPITAL

Washington, Oct. 28 (I.N.S.).—The administration has become embroiled in a row over the condition of national defense that threatens to make the oncoming session of Congress full of fireworks, with "Coolidge economy" the target for heavy cannonading.

A swarm of inquiring letters descending today upon government officials from all parts of the country, criticism from within the army and navy and demands by members of Congress for facts, indicated a greater interest in the question of preparedness than at any time since the World War.

The case of Rear Admiral Thomas P. Magruder, who was summarily deposed from his Philadelphia command for criticism of the navy and who was promptly denied a hearing by President Coolidge, promised to assume greater proportions when he comes here on November 8 "for discipline."

Administration circles were seething with discussion of the criticisms of the state of the national defense by Assistant Secretary of the Navy T. Douglas Robinson and Assistant Secretary of War Hanford McNider. Nor was criticism of army housing conditions by Major-General Summerall recalled from a Pacific Coast speaking tour, forgotten.

Predictions were freely made by members of Congress that preparedness would become a major issue, taking its place in the coming session with tax reduction and farm aid flood relief.

President Coolidge, by his quick refusal to override the Navy Department in the Magruder case, indicated that he would enforce the policy restraining public protests by army and navy officers.

While he let it be known that the budget would carry increases for the army and navy, preparedness advocates expect the budget to be a disappointment from their viewpoint.

Britten Plan Would Include 30 Cruisers

Washington, Oct. 28 (A.P.)—A move already is on foot on Capitol Hill to bring a naval building program forcibly before the approaching session of Congress.

There is a current of thought among a number of members that failure of the Geneva conference to reach an agreement of limiting warcraft tonnage must affected by the Washington arms treaty, calls for serious consideration of the advisability of providing funds for additional fighting craft.

Discussion so far has centred largely upon the need for additional American cruisers, a type of warship in which Great Britain greatly surpasses this country.

Representative Britten of Illinois ranking Republican on the House Naval Committee, declared that to balance the battle fleet he will introduce a bill providing construction over a five-year period of 30 cruisers of 10,000 tons each and two airplane carriers of the type of the Lexington and Saratoga which will be completed within the next few months.

HOOVER DIDN'T FIX WAR PRICE ON WHEAT

Kansas City, Oct. 28 (A.P.).—Herbert Hoover, as food administrator during the World War, had no part in determining the price fixed for wheat, Dr. Harry A. Garfield president of Williams College and chairman of the commission named by President Wilson to recommend a price, said in a letter today to the Kansas City Star.

Dr. Garfield's communication was in reply to a request for the facts.

Higgins suffered a fractured skull and his chest was crushed. Twitchell who was driving, suffered severe bruises and lacerations.

TIP FROM HUB LEADS TO BIG RUM SEIZURE

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 28 (I.N.S.).—Scotch whiskey said to be worth nearly $150,000 was seized in a war for truck on the Short Beach road during the night by Federal enforcement agents after a tip from agents in Boston, and coastguard vessels have been patrolling Long Island Sound ever since seeking the craft supposed to have landed the liquor.

The liquor, in Federal storage here, is contained in jugs bearing labels of the Isla Distillery, Perth, Scotland, and was addressed to the S. S. Newfoundland, South Hornby Dock, Liverpool.

Federal Agents Henry L. O'Malley and Thomas A. Kenefic, according to an official statement issued here today, drove to a spot on the East Haven River at Short Beach, known as "Smugglers' Cove," and there hid until they heard a motorboat passing along the river. A few minutes later a truck passed them. When the driver refused to halt the agents pursued and came upon the truck abandoned beside the road. The truck bore the legend: Doody Brothers, trucking, Mechanic street, New Haven. Members of the firm deny knowing of the liquor cargo. The driver has not been found.

WORCESTER MAN INVENTS SELF-REGENERATING MOTOR

out any external mechanism. The engine weighs 1½ pounds per horse-power, according to its sponsor. In 50 horsepower motors, he said he hopes to get the weight down to one pound per horsepower. Atwood added that the mechanical details of his invention cannot be revealed at this time.

CLAIMS YEAR'S RUN.

The "Self-Regenerating Motor," on the other hand, has been patented, and one of them has been hooked up to run a Worcester industrial plant.

Requiring neither storage batteries nor fuel of any kind, and running as its inventor and sponsors claim it will for a year without attention, it is declared to be the long-sought ideal motive power for airplanes and automobiles.

Its inventor, a mechanical genius who is characterized as a second Edison, has literally discovered the process of building up a spark delivered by a magneto, to practically any desired amount of power.

At the present time one of the motors is running the foundry of the Wells Chemical Bronze Company, No. 65 Temple street, Worcester, furnishing electricity for lights requiring 12,500 watts, and generating energy to the extent of 60 horsepower required to run the machinery of the plant.

This hookup was designed as an experiment by the American Automotive Company of New York, which controls all of Lavigne's inventions, and the general manager of which is William J Counihan, of the Boston Athletic Association, original sponsor of the inventor.

A motor is now in process of construction which will be attached to the chassis of a Packard automobile from which the gas motor has been removed, and the machine will then be driven to the Pacific Coast under electrical power, according to present plans.

PATENTS TAKEN OUT.

Ramsey & Company of Ottawa, patent attorneys in the Dominion of Canada for the Marconi interests, are acting in the same capacity for the American Automotive Company.

To a reporter for the Boston Evening American, who was permitted to view the machine, together with Captain B. F. Billings, general manager of the Boston Airport Corporation, it resembled the nearest thing to perpetual motion yet discovered. Without batteries, outside current or any extraneous aids, the motor functioned as smoothly as a watch, generating power, lighting lights and yet failing to get hot or afford shocks to inquisitive hands.

NO SHOCK FELT.

The last two mysterious features of the machine are a constant source of surprise to those familiar with electricity, but it was demonstrated by the reporter over and over again that the motor does not heat and contact with it does not shock.

Captain Billings, one of the foremost aviators in the country, which fact he demonstrated by the way in landing a big Stinson-Detroiter cabin plane containing the Boston Evening reporter and photographer on Boston Airport in the dark, was stated with the new motor.

"If it will continue to do what it is doing," he declared, "and can be built light enough, it will prove to be the ideal method of propelling airplanes. Aviation experts have long realized that electricity was the most desirable motive power for the air, but heretofore weight and the necessity for storage batteries have made it impossible to attain.

"Boston an other cities are full of big electric motors that run all the time without much attention. They never run out of fuel and seldom it ever break down.

"If a motor of this kind can be built light enough to install in a plane, that plane could be flown around the world and back again, as far as the motive power was concerned."

REGARDED AS FANATIC.

The "self-regenerating motor" is of course in its infancy, but its possibilities appear to be endless. Already efforts have been made to obtain control of it, but Counihan, the general manager, has refused to discuss the question of disposal by his company.

To the inventor it is the culmination of years of dogged industry, years in which he struggled on, convinced that he had something worthwhile, despite the jeers of many persons who regarded him as a fanatic.

SECRET IN TUBE.

The working parts of the motor are all made of standard materials such as General Electric generators and motors. In the model constructed for the patent department, these are mounted on a wooden case inside of which are forty-eight brass tubes, in each of which is cemented a glass tube containing the Lavigne formula. This formula contains the secret of the direct current transformer, and requires renewal once a year. That, however, is the only attention the motor needs, unless its brushes or other parts wear out.

RAN 87 HOURS.

The motor has been run experimentally for periods of varying duration, and has never stopped of its own accord. On one occasion it ran eighty-seven hours constantly, lighting seventy-two lights. It has run an average of four or five hours a day for the past fourteen months, and according to Mr. Lavigne, the generator he used was six years old, on his original model.

On June 28 last, when the then model was smaller than it is at present, Professor H. A. Maxwell, professor of electrical engineering of Worcester Polytechnic Institute, made a study of its power and delivered a report. In this report he stated that the direct current generated was sufficient to drive an airplane 125 miles an hour, that it lighted lights using 13,870 watts, and the total power converted into horsepower was 17.4.

CELEBRATE IN WORK, NOT IN WORDS, DECLARES DUCE

Rome, Oct. 28 (I.N.S.)—"The culmination of our work is completed with the massing of four armed legions, whose gathering will be a solemn warning to whosoever harbors the folly of thinking to impede our progress," declared Premier Mussolini today in a stirring message for the forth anniversary of the Fascist march upon Rome.

The actual date of the anniversary falls tomorrow, but the Duce ordered it postponed until Sunday so that a working day would not be lost. Another sentence of the message was:

"Not in words, but in work do we celebrate this anniversary."

Fascist demonstrations will be held throughout Italy on Sunday.

Arrest Was Favor to Young Boy; "Tired of Life"

New York, Oct. 28 (A.P.)—Harold A. Baram, twenty-three, of Linden road, Quincy, Mass., told the police today they had done him a favor in arresting him on a charge of attempted burglary. He was tired of life, he said, and wanted to be sent to jail.

A quarrel with his father had made him leave home three weeks ago, he explained.

MRS. KNAPP TO 'TEAR LID OFF'

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 28 (I.N.S.).—Charging a "political conspiracy," Mrs. Florence E S Knapp, former Secretary of State, today promised to "tear the lid off" and give the public the story of the motives that brought about the investigation into her administration of the 1925 census funds.

In the third of a series of affidavits, Mrs. Knapp promised these alleged revelations in documents to be given out some time next week.

"I shall require to give special attention to the activities of Dr. Laidlaw and the airmen political conspiracy through which this attack was suddenly culminated against me nearly a year after I had left office," Mrs. Knapp said.

Trips to Boston and other points in Massachusetts were for the purpose of obtaining information about a census taken in that State by policemen and letter carriers, Mrs. Knapp affirmed.

She said that she was also invited to speak on census work in Massachusetts.

'WET' BARN RAID IN ROCKLAND

PARALYSIS CLOSES SCHOOLS IN ESSEX

The three Essex public schools were closed today by the authorities and the four public schools of Ipswich, closed now for three weeks, were ordered by the Board of Health to remain closed another week, because of prevalence of infantile paralysis.

MELLON URGES REMEDY FOR INCOME TAX TANGLE

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON CURRENT HAPPENINGS IN SOCIETY

Bostonians of Note Sailing on Steamship France En Route to the African Interior

ABOARD THE STEAMSHIP FRANCE AS SHE STEAMS OUT OF NEW YORK Harbor tonight (she makes one of those midnight sailings) there is an important Boston contingent bound for far and interesting spots way on the other side of the world Mr. and Mrs. John Bryant Paine Boston and Weston, Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Paine of Boston, Wayland and Nahant, with Miss Helen Paine, Miss Julia Lee Paine and Miss Jeanie Paine (daughters of the John Paines) are in the group, and they are accompanied by Dr. Fresinius Van Nuys of Weston. The transatlantic passage of the France is but the first leg of a journey that ends in the interior of Africa.

ULTIMATELY THEY ARRIVE IN BRITISH EAST Africa, that fabled land that calls the explorer and big game hunter to view its marvels and track its game Theirs is not the ordinary journey of every day, by any means. Travelers into "British East" cover the miles in real story book fashion by "safari," with a long train of bearers. Trekking into the interior of the mysterious Continent is not a brand new experience to the Frank C. Paines. They have been in before They have already spent several months in such fascinating pursuits, and only a year or two ago.

FOR MISS JULIA LEE PAINE, PARTICULARLY, the journey holds more than the usual thrill. For she is one of the prominent debutantes of the Winter, and it is not the great good fortune of every bud to climax a debut by such an amazing journey She was brilliantly presented scarcely a month ago via a tea dance at the Paines' enormous country home in Weston For little Miss Jeanie Paine it will be the experience of a lifetime, and for Miss Helen Paine also, who came out a year or two ago.

BY COMPARISON WITH THE PAINES' JOURNEYINGS other voyagers via the France are off on travels that seem prosaic. However a European journey along the beaten paths is fascinating enough, at any time. Mrs. Philip L. Warren of Waban goes Europeward via the France. Mr. and Mrs. Andrew G. Breese of Manchester are away, and Mrs. J. Bertram Williams of Cambridge and Annisquam also departs for foreign shores.

MRS CHARLES ALDRICH OF THE PRETTY little town of Dublin in the New Hampshire hill country is Mrs. Williams' companion on the France And Professor Raoul Blanchard returns to La Belle France. Professor Blanchard has been the guest of his friends, Professor and Mrs. L. J. Henderson, at their Cambridge home, during his stay here-about, a stay occasioned principally by his lectures at the Lowell Institute.

TOMORROW EVENING A YOUNG BACHELOR soon to be a benedict gives his "farewell" celebration. The host is young Mr. Gilbert Livingston Steward, son of Mr. and Mrs. Campbell Steward of Goshen and Bar Harbor. His farewell dinner antedates by exactly two weeks his marriage with Miss Anne Beekman Ayer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs

Mrs. Morgan Butler sang at Milford Hospital benefit, arranged by Mrs. B. H. Bristow Draper.

Charles Fanning Ayer of Hamilton and Boston. Mr Steward elects to have his bachelor dinner down in the country at the Myopia Club just as Miss Ayer elects to have a country wedding.

AND A COUNTRY WEDDING IT WILL BE, IN the truest sense Simply arranged and carried out in simplicity. Miss Ayer and Mr. Steward will meet before the altar of Christ Church in Hamilton, on Saturday, November 12, to plight their marriage vows Immediately afterward everyone goes over to Juniped Ridge, the Ayer country place in Hamilton, to wish the young people happiness and Godspeed on their new journey. But strictly speaking, of course, such a wedding by its very importance glows brightly on the fashionable calendar.

HOWEVER SHORN IT IS OF ostentation and effect, nevertheless the wedding is quite the most important nuptial celebration of the Autumn. The Ayers have their interesting and important friends by the score, and Mr. Steward's place in the social structure is on the very summits. Christ Church, an ecclesiastical gem but of bijou proportions, will scarcely suffice to house the wedding company. Mr. Steward's circle added to the bride's will fill it completely.

HUB FREIGHT IS DERAILED

Lyme, Conn., Oct. 28 (A.P.)—The cannonball freight train from Boston to New York, auto perishable freight, was derailed here when nine cars in the middle of the 86 cars string buckled and piled up.

The wreck caused detouring of all trains over the shore line division for several hours.

COLLEGE HEADS ATTEND THATCHER'S INAUGURAL

Amherst, Oct. 28 (A.P.)—More than 70 educational institutions sent representatives here to the inauguration late this afternoon of Roscoe W. Thatcher as tenth president of the Massachusetts Agricultural College.

Among the speakers at the banquet tonight will be President Edward M. Lewis of the University of New Hampshire, President Thatcher's predecessor here; President Arthur S. Pease of Amherst College, President Mary E. Woolley of Mt. Holyoke College, and President Bartlett of Hobart College.

TODAY

are teaching old-fashioned finance some new methods.

Jack Dempsey, who fights and lives to fight another day, can't pay his manager, Mr. Flynn, all he would like to, because, says Mr. Dempsey, "I am not making big money and can't afford to give them everything they want."

Dempsey made about $500,000 in thirty minutes the other day and will soon make $500,000 in thirty more minutes or less again. But you can't call that BIG money, for a heavyweight."

Some clergymen that work very hard for smaller pay will be inclined to quote:

"Woo, in the names of all the Gods at once,
Upon what meat doth this our Caesar feed,
That he is grown so great!"

Nevertheless, when you have become accustomed to earning a million dollars in thirty minutes, it is hard to be cut down to half a million.

The heirs of an Indian rajah of Bhopal offer for sale in New York a collection of carved emeralds. One weighing 3,540 karats is carved to represent a Chinese woman. The price, should you want to buy something for Christmas, is $500,000. The value of the stone is largely spoiled by the fact that it is intricately carved instead of being polished and let alone.

That's what happens often to careful writing. Too much fancy carving when reasonable polishing would be better.

ITALIAN LINER WILL SAIL FROM HUB DEC. 9

Another passenger steamship was added to Boston's list today. The Italian liner Colombo will make a special Christmas sailing from this port Dec. 9.

On her maiden Hub sailing she will go direct to Palermo, Naples and Genoa for the Navigazione Generale Italiana.

According to John W. Smith, manager of the Italo-America shipping office, recently opened here, the Colombo will make seven trips next season with the possibility of a sister ship being added to the same service.

IRISH CARDINAL LAID TO REST

Armagh, Ireland, Oct. 28 (A.P.)—Armagh today was a city of sorrow and gloom. Rain fell heavily from the early morning hours but the streets were crowded with people for the funeral of Cardinal O'Donnell, Primate of Ireland which has drawn mourners from places as wide apart as Chicago and West Australia.

From the latter came the Rt. Rev. Patrick Joseph Clune, archbishop of Perth, Australia, while Chicago was represented by its municipal commissioners headed by Michael J. Flaherty, now in Ireland. President Cosgrave also was represented.

Among the mourners were seven Irish bishops who came from Rome, fourteen archbishops and hundreds of priests.

Every business place and dwelling in Armagh was shuttered or had its blinds drawn.

ORDERS ARMED AIRPLANES TO COLORADO STRIKE ZONE

Denver, Oct. 28 (I.N.S.)—Three National Guard airplanes were ordered today to the strike zone of the coal miners in southern Colorado by Governor William H. Adams. Machine guns, bombs and reserve ammunition will be carried. Low serve supplies of gasoline, so that no landings will be necessary. Air headquarters will be established at Pueblo.

Industrial paralysis was predicted today. An announcement made by the Colorado Fuel & Iron Company stated that one-third of its normal Pueblo would have to be shut down for lack of coal, throwing out of work 2,000 men.

VESSEL AFIRE, CREW GONE

New York, Oct. 28 (A.P.)—A vessel, believed to be the schooner Santa Rosa, plying between Nova Scotia and New York, was reported to be burning today about 240 miles east of New York, said radio messages received here.

A message from the steamship Blair said she was standing by, but that there were no signs of life aboard the burning ship.

Later a message was received from the steamship Canadian Traveler saying it had picked up the crew of a vessel in distress at about the position in which the schooner was reported to be burning.

ENDS LIFE WHEN SHIP CRASHES

Rio Janeiro, Brazil, Oct. 28 (A.P.).—More than 300 persons, many of them women and children, were still missing today from the ill-fated Italian liner Principessa Mafalda, which sank off the Brazilian coast Tuesday night in the midst of scenes of suffering and panic.

The captain of the ship, according to one story, died a suicide as the boat went down.

Through the veil of confusion and contradictory advices from the scene of the disaster, came more definite reports today when the Dutch liner Athena came into port carrying 821 survivors and the French liner Formose with 353 survivors.

The French steamer Moselle landed thirty passengers and twenty-two members of the ship's crew at Bahia yesterday, thus accounting for 975 of the 1,256 persons aboard the stricken Italian steamer.

Even then rescue figures varied, the agents of the Mafalda at Buenos Aires placing the number saved at 932, while the Italian Embassy at Rio Janeiro placed the number at 925.

Through the medley of stories some almost incoherent, poured out by the exhausted survivors, came stories of heroism, of panic and of suffering and terror in the darkness of Tuesday night.

Some declared the ship had been torn by an explosion while others said that the ship simply had foundered in from four to five hours when water swept into her by a break in a screw shaft hold.

Some, still haunted by the terror of the night, told of seeing sharks tearing at the bodies of victims, but other survivors scoffed at this, declaring they had seen no sharks.

IT'S NIX ON NICKY! ASK FANNY!

"It's Grade A 'applesauce.'"

What? Why, the latest rumor that Fanny Brice, popular stage star, now in Boston, is to remarry "Nicky" Arnstein—for whom she waited during his imprisonment, for whom she altered her distinctive nose, and for whom, let her tell it, she now has no regrets.

The saucy answer is Fanny's own, typical of her breezy, sophisticated wit and snappy wit.

"Oh, sure, I knew how that rumor started. Comes from New York, doesn't it? I thought so. At 9 a. m. this morning a banker friend of mine called me from there on the telephone.

"Says he, 'I'm coming right over to Boston and marry you right away.' There's your rumor. It wasn't Nicky. My answer was a loud guffaw, same as Nicky would get if it had been he.

"I turned in and slept the sleep of the just, and Mr. Banker didn't come over to Boston. He won't. He was spoofing, result of too much night club.

"Say, brother, if it's true I'm to remarry Nicky Arnstein, then it's true I'm going to buy Boston Common and build a home for broken-hearted divorced husbands—bless 'em!

"No, my dear boy, Nicky is out of my life, so distant a radio message couldn't reach him. I like the single life too well to consider marrying anyone at all and for the 'steenth time I'll say again that I don't love him, and I'm not going to remarry him.

"I don't mind admitting that rumor gets under my skin, but I'll be tolerant. Just say for me it's Grade A applesauce.

WOMAN'S PETITION TO GO TO UPPER COURT

In a decision involving the disposition of approximately $11,000,000, Judge Sanderson of the Supreme Court today refused to issue a writ of mandamus to compel the Boston & Maine Railroad directors to declare dividends to holders of first preferred stock out of surplus earnings of 1925 and 1926.

The case will now go to the full bench of the Supreme Court for final determination. The petition against the railroad company was brought by Helen D. Morse.

She asked that dividends be distributed to holders of first preferred stock who did not assent to the reorganization of last year. The sum would amount to nearly $3,000,000. Counsel for the railroad asserted that if these dividends were paid money to the amount of $8,000,000 must also be paid, and this would reduce the company's surplus from $2,500,000 to $1,500,000.

A Real Drama of Boston Theatrical Life After the Curtain Drops

CHAPTER 40.

"DID it ever occur to you, Boris, that the books people read are a perfect indication of character?"

Nan, Lady Travers, was stretched out comfortably on a long wicker chair. Her head was thrown back against a brilliant orange cushion, which seemed to exaggerate, rather than diminish the brightness of her own coloring. Her brownish tweed dress was opened upon a smooth, sunburned throat. Health, happiness serenity shone in the glance of her eyes. The old exuberant enthusiasm of young Nan Estabrook was still there, but tempered now, by the steady fire of contentment. She spoke pleasantly, balancing a cup of tea in her hand, although her words were addressed to Abelard who included her brother, who sat quietly, a little out of the group gathered in the terrace, and Geoffrey Travers, whose chair was drawn comfortably close to hers. Abelard said, laughing: "I'm afraid that if I could confess my reading matter you'll be sorely disappointed. As you all know, I'm a pipe-t suit of leather Romanticist at heart, though my reading is dry as dust. I'm-tlase in so cool and hard."

"Oh, that's typical," Nan rejoined gaily. "It writes itself, you see. We read for what we haven't in life. Books supplant our experiences."

"I say," Travers put in earnestly, "when I was in school we were told that you hunted for yourself in literature, and all that badly rot. You know, girls in trouble like to read about girls in trouble. Respectable people like to read about respectable beggars. Nan's always proving me wrong."

"You like it with a good grace," Abelard said, "though I'm sure you know. And then although she's such an infant in years she's much wiser than I am. Knows a lot, knows almost everything one might say. But I don't think she gets it out of books."

"Oh I stick to novels about our

SEIZED PLANE IS RELEASED

St. Albans, Vt., Oct. 28 (A.P.)—The seaplane seized and kept under customs guard at Burlington, while the plane and the personal effects of Pilot Wincapaw and his passenger Leon Tarr of New York, were thoroughly searched, was released today by Collector of Customs Harry C. Whitehill, after he received a report from Captain Jack B. Kendrick, lake patrol chief, that no contraband had been found.

Kendrick reported he had given Wincapaw permission to leave.

The man admitted, the collector said, that he had made two trips to Montreal with Tarr.

It was announced the government would seek to collect a penalty of $100 for each time Wincapaw has crossed the line without reporting entrance in the Second Customs district.

SHARKEY'S BOSS IS ACCUSED

"Johnny" Buckley of Brighton, manager of Jack Sharkey and other boxers, was in East Cambridge District Court today on complaint of John McGann, a Cambridge fight promoter.

McGann charged that Buckley threatened to beat him up, and also that Sharkey's manager drove his automobile up on a sidewalk in pursuit of McGann.

Buckley, who just returned from Detroit with one of his fighters, pleaded not guilty to threatening and to operating so as to endanger the safety of the public. He was held in $100 for a hearing Nov. 2 on request of his counsel, Attorney Timothy J. Sullivan.

LARGE HEARST PUBLICATIONS ISSUE OFFERED

New York, Oct. 28.—The greatest publishing business in the world makes announcement of the largest newspaper bond issue of the year.

The Hearst Publications, Inc., representing the Pacific Coast papers in the Hearst chain, are selling to the public $20,000,000 of 6¼ per cent. serial gold bonds through the investment houses of Halsey, Stuart & Co. and the Anglo-Paris-London Company.

What do we mean by "the greatest publishing business in the world." Well, the thirty-five newspaper and magazine properties of William Randolph Hearst did a gross business last year of $46 to 000. They have 20,000 miles on their payrolls. They are published in seventeen cities. One for more Hearst publications may be found in approximately 10,000,000 homes and are read by one out of every three families in the United States.

PERSONAL INTEREST.

Many of these 10,000,000 homes will feel a personal interest in owning some of these new bonds, just as millions of investors have put their money into other serving corporations which serve them daily, such as electric light, gas and telephone companies. The newspaper, also, is a sort of public service corporation. Like the other utilities, it will be strengthened by having its patrons holding its securities.

First, a bondholder wants to know the assets that are mortgaged for his security. Hearst Publications, Inc., owns the San Francisco Examiner, the San Francisco Call and Post, the Los Angeles Examiner, the Los Angeles Herald, the Oakland Post-Inquirer and, after this bond issue, it will own the Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

These are the dominating papers of the communities in which they live, and their combined daily circulation averages more than 920,000. Their assets, completely and exclusively mortgaged to secure this $20,000 bond issue, are independently estimated to be over $52,000,000 that is they are secured for less than one-third their value.

Second, the bond buyer wants to know the assured earnings available to meet interest on bonds. Last year the gross revenues of these newspapers ran over $23,000,000, of which $5,277,000 was net income available for paying bond interest. Earnings this year are running ahead of last year, assuring a net of more than $5,000,000 to pay the $1,250,000 required at 6¼ per cent. on the $20,000,000 bonds issued. That is, the earnings are something more than four times what is required.

FURTHER SECURITY.

There is further security behind the new bonds. They are supported by the unconditional personal guarantee of Mr Hearst, who, with his vast investments in publications, real estate mention pictures and mining, is one of the world's richest men. He is one of the country's biggest business men and one of its greatest individualists. Jake Ford, Hearst owns his own prizes outright, so all their combined equity is put behind these bonds who Hearst attaches his personal guarantee.

There is similarity in the methods of Ford and Hearst violently as their careers differ. Ford began with the advantages of poverty and struggle. Hearst with the handicap of wealth. When he was fresh out of Harvard his father gave him a start by four-page sheet, the San Francisco Examiner. He made it as it still let the finest paper of San Francisco. Then the young Westerner aroused the tolerant sympathy of New York when he came to New York and paid $175,000 for a wavering newspaper called the Morning Journal.

That was thirty-two years ago. Today his newspapers in New York, Baltimore, Washington, Boston, Albany, Syracuse, Rochester, Detroit, Chicago, Milwaukee, Seattle, Portland, San Francisco, Los Angeles, San Antonio, Pittsburgh and Atlanta Hearst a monument to one man to build for himself, a man who at sixty-four has the constitution and interest of twenty-four years ago and an extraordinary freshness and flexibility of mind.

The issue of serial bonds, to be sold at par, are an opportunity for investment in one of the greatest business properties and profitable industrial enterprises.

the Statler Office Building

A STATEMENT BY E. M. STATLER

Present and prospective tenants of the Statler Office Building are asked to give no credence to rumors that a part of the building's space is to be devoted to hotel purposes. The unusual volume of business enjoyed by Hotel Statler (for which we are deeply grateful to Boston and to New England) is probably the basis of such reports; BUT WE WISH TO FORMALLY AND EMPHATICALLY DENY THAT ANY PART OF THE BUILDING WILL NOW, OR IN THE FUTURE, BE TAKEN OVER BY THE HOTEL FOR AN ENLARGEMENT.

This statement should not, really, be necessary. It must be obvious to everyone that Boston has ample hotel facilities without the enlargement of any house.

JOHN CRAIG IN HUB PERFORMANCE TONIGHT

The name of John Craig appears in the cast of "The Famous Mrs Fair," announced for a single performance this evening at the Leland Powers Theatre in the Back Bay. This is the first time in several seasons that this popular actor has made a public appearance.

Mr. Craig, recognized as one of the ablest actors on the English speaking stage, has turned a deaf ear to several flattering offers made by New York producers to star him this season in order that he might devote his entire time as director of the "school of the theatre" of the Leland Powers School of the Spoken Word.

BROOKLINE GIRL IS FEATURED DANCER

Beulah Baker, a winsome miss of nineteen, born and educated in Brookline and well known in the Hub for her participation in local theatrical entertainments, is now enjoying her third visit back home since embarking on a professional stage career a little more than two years ago.

She is one of the featured dancers in "Cantor's Revels," a lively song and dance revue at Loew's Orpheum this week. While attending Brookline grammar and high schools, Miss Baker devoted her spare time learning the art of dancing at the Amelia Burnham studio in this city.

At Sanitarium

JOAN CRAWFORD

100 patients at Boston Sanitarium enjoyed Joan Crawford in the new William Haines' comedy, "Spring Fever," shown at the institution through the co-operation of the Boston Evening American and Loew's State Theatre.

PATIENTS SEE FILM COMEDY

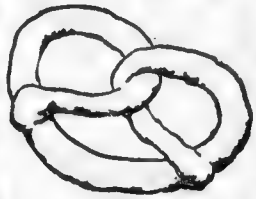
Four hundred men, women and children at the Boston Sanitarium, Rivers street, Mattapan, today are thankful to the Boston Evening American and Loew's State Theatre for the thoughtfulness and kindness in sending them a full evening's entertainment in the form of two of the very latest screen attractions.

The films shown were "Spring Fever" and "The Second Hundred Years," both comedies. "Spring Fever" is a seven-reel picture, starring the inimitable William Haines and luscious Joan Crawford, that has for its setting one of the most fascinating golf clubs in the country. Its patrons will be part of the current program to be shown at Loew's State Theatre this coming week.

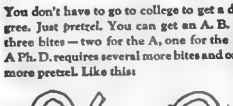
That the showing of the pictures was a delight to the inmates needless to say, was evidenced by the hearty laughter and the witty sidelines of those present. They followed all jokes every movie and were joyous at Joe's good fortune in winning the girl. All are looking forward to the time when the Boston Evening American and Loew's state give another program.

Bite yourself an Alphabet



Pretzeleers bite their own degrees

You don't have to go to college to get a degree. Just pretzel. You can get an A. B. in three bites—two for the A, one for the B. A Ph. D. requires several more bites and one more pretzel. Like this:



People who spend four years crunching on Greek verbs can get more crunch out of pretzels because they're crunchier. They're crisp as a college yell and brittle as good intentions to study hard.....And pretzel graduates are always worth their salt because pretzels are so nice and salty.

Pretzeleers always eat O-So-Guds when drinking ginger ale. Pretzels teach soup or salad or dessert to taste better.... Eat them before going to bed or give them to the youngsters in between meals.

Pretzels are always au fait—if you know what that means. You will, if you insist on O-So-Gud Pretzels made by the Uneeda Bakers.... Oh yes! They're easy to digest, too.

O-SO-GUD PRETZELS

Bite right and you can spell anything with the big O-So-Guds. They're full of twists, turns and holes.

Professor Hart Broadcasts

Albert Bushnell Hart, professor of history at Harvard and writer of books stigmatizes as "un-American" by Chicago authorities is on the air tonight in a commemorative broadcast of Theodore Roosevelt's birthday. The broadcast, which starts at 8 o'clock, is Professor Hart's first radio broadcast.

RADIO-DIALOG

by WILLIAM RANDOLPH

GREAT contrast presented itself when it was announced that the Radiotrons would feature a modern musical fantasie called "Egyptian Echoes." Over the blue network it came last night and we immediately wondered how King Tut would regard radio. For what we heard here in the way of solos, quartets, and instrumental selections, was good enough for any king, even a dead one.

Yesterday was dog day in some parts of the country from reports received by courtesy of the United States Weather Bureau. Last night was dog night with the Eskimonas and it was dogone dozey. Mutts, curs, mongrels, and police department dogs were heard represented, sometimes so vaguely we had to stretch our imagination, to discover what kind of music it was. The party broke up when a dog from the infernal revenue department came around.

What should have been sent over the red, white, and blue networks was the Navy Day program, courtesy of Curtis D. Wilbur. Mr. Wilbur is this year's Secretary of Navy. What impressed us was when he said, "The freight paid by Americans for transoceanic commerce carrying amounted to $600,000,000 annually." This is no joke; $600,000,000 over the radio is a lot of money. But when the U. S. people pay that for freight going to or coming from Europe it's an outrage.

The rest of the Navy Day program was austere, formal, dignified, and used ten syllable words. It is reported that General Lord, Director of the Budget, collapsed immediately after hearing Mr. Wilbur's arithmetic.

The Metropolitan broadcast, always heard on Thursday nights via WNAC, is one of the best local broadcasts. We say this on the review of its average weekly performance. Sometimes it falls below and we have nothing to say.

Don't confuse Balkite "AB" with so-called radio socket powers

It contains no battery in any form

The new Balkite "AB" replaces both "A" and "B" batteries and supplies radio current from the light socket. It is not to be confused with so-called radio socket powers. It contains no battery in any form, no relay, nor any other accessories. It puts an end forever to run-down radio power. It delivers even uniform current to the set at all times.

This new complete unit operates only during reception. It is the most economical of all sources of radio power. There is no trickle charging when it is not in use. It requires practically no attention, is unaffected by standing idle, is entirely noiseless and has nothing to wear out or replace—a permanent piece of equipment.

Two models, 135 volts, $64.50. 180 volts, $74.50. Your dealer will recommend the one you need. Fansteel Products Company, Inc., North Chicago, Illinois.

Blue and Green Year's Best Game Condition Will Win

Schoolboy Spirit Plenty Hereabouts Kids Need Stadia

By NICK FLATLEY

REAL BATTLE OF CENTURY AT YALE BOWL

THE old mental state and physical condition will decide the issue when Yale and Dartmouth go to it in the Bowl tomorrow in what looks like the biggest football game of the year's program.

This will be a high tension contest from the opening whistle until the final toot, and the outfit that carries the right confidence into the fray, and can keep plugging at top speed, will come away with the laurels.

Nick Flatley

Yale and Dartmouth stack up as the two best teams in the east by several nautical miles. The formerly reverenced dope can be twisted around to show that either can win easily.

The fact seems to be that the teams are so close that the breaks, which follow confidence and physical superiority, will nominate the victor.

Yale has been up against a tougher schedule than the Green. Any team that licks Brown and the Army on successive Saturdays has been doing a real job of work. The Blue regulars had to be in perfect fettle to get away with that tough double hurdle. If Yale can keep that condition, Dartmouth will have plenty of trouble, and possibly much woe.

Two hard games can jostle an intensively trained team off edge, and Eli supporters have that, and practically nothing else to worry about. The Bulldogs are a great football team, with a bird of a line, fine ends, and plenty of backs who can go places when they grab the ball.

Dartmouth, on the other hand, has not been tested yet. The Green's games have been comparatively soft, insofar as the team has never been forced to play itself out to cop. The reserve energy has not been called on enough to cause any worry about staleness.

The Green should be in fine shape for the big trial, but there's the chance that lack of real conflict previously may keep the team from doing its stuff until too late. Victory has been so soft that there's a danger of over-confidence. Brown and Penn have proved this year how fatal that is.

Dartmouth, built on a speed system, will try to run Yale ragged and wear the Blue down. That backfield can pick up two or three touchdowns in a period if the enemy weakens.

Yale, with Yale habit, will endeavor to tear the Green line apart, and ruin that shifting backfield before the sprinting specters can get going. All in all, it should be quite a muss with plenty of brilliant individual stuff tossed in. Boys like Lane, Marsters and Caldwell have to get away now and then in the course of an hour's war.

SCHOOLBOYS HAVE REAL GRIDIRON SPIRIT

THERE'S no finer sport spirit in this broad land than you can find at any one of a dozen school football games in these parts any Saturday. The youngsters have the old, wild desire for victory that used to be found in the colleges before the students became hard boiled and noisy exuberance was voted passe.

Football, as hard and as brilliant as the college brand, is produced by all the big schoolboy teams, and the fan who howls about the ticket situation would do well to trickle out and watch a kid game now and then. He wouldn't miss the college kind a bit.

The youngsters draw their own crowds, however, and getting in at the large games is almost as hard as invading the Stadium on an important afternoon. Everett and Medford will turn away thousands tomorrow, for instance. Schoolboy stadia, big ones, are now in order. Boston has a chance to show the way.

FORDHAM GAME "IS IN THE BAG" FOR THE EAGLES

Boston College players running through signal drill at South Station before en training for Fordham today.

'BUD' DOWER TO START AGAINST FORDHAM

Boston College will start its strongest team against Fordham in the Polo Grounds tomorrow afternoon. The Eagles will have an added incentive to win, as the Rams were defeated by Maine, the latter scoring a safety and a touchdown from the Irish.

Coach Lee Daley will make no changes in his starting lineup. The Eagle first team which will trot out on the Polo Ground turf tomorrow will line up with Hafferty and Murphy, ends; McGuirk and Herman, tackles; Captain O'Brien and Durant, guards and Earl Cooper, center.

The backfield, which Daley is hoping will be able to penetrate Fordham's strong line, is composed of Weston, quarterback, Creedon and Wilczewski, halfbacks, and Bud Dower, fullback.

Dower's illness has been greatly exaggerated. The Big Norwood boy has been ailing all week with a slight cold. But it is not of a serious nature and Dower will be ready to face Fordham tomorrow at the Polo Grounds.

Bill Hafferty and Duke McGowan are also ready to play a thirty-boy game, while Earl Cooper has been afflicted with a nasty throat muscle. This leaves Tom Smith the only remainder on the medical staff's splints were taken off his broken hand but it is doubtful if he will be used against the Maroons.

Quite a few Boston College students left on the boat for New York last night. The N. Y. Alumni of Boston College are holding a smoker in the K. of C. building this evening and many B. C. men were anxious

HORWEEN READY TO SHOW ALL

Crimson Coach Plans to Shoot "the Works" Against Indiana Tomorrow

Warranted or not, there is a spirit of optimism in Harvard grid circles on the eve of the clash with Indiana in the Stadium tomorrow afternoon.

All the dope points to a victory for the visitors, who have been [illegible] to a fit and performed as [illegible] Notre Dame as the [illegible] Navy eleven get the odds [illegible] 1 to 10-9 on Pat Page [illegible] and there is plenty of Ha[illegible] money to back [illegible]

In general [illegible] around [illegible] seems to be that Hor[illegible] will "shoot the works" in the [illegible] Westerners [illegible] with the Crimson's [illegible] something in reserve [illegible] game regardless of the [illegible] of any near [illegible] but [illegible] is that Horween is tired [illegible] being held up as a "goat" and [illegible] the fault to beat Indiana and [illegible] [illegible] and [illegible] though [illegible] the team will be lessened [illegible] chances of beating the Bulldog.

Horween gave out a probable lineup this morning that fits right in with the mysterious atmosphere. He has named strong and [illegible] [illegible] and Pratt [illegible] Simons and Tripp re[illegible] left center, Howie Burns [illegible] at quarter with Cross [illegible] and Mason as the starting backs.

Again he adds the proviso that changes are still liable to take [illegible]

The lineup itself is queer, but the [illegible] addition adds to the speculation [illegible]

It is now lineup itself offers plenty [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] personnel. He has benched Dave Guarnaccia and Jack Parsinnen, regulars all year, and inserted Tom Mason and [illegible] Tripp in their berths.

Messrs. Tripp and Mason have been starring [illegible] wingers on Team [illegible] season and now comes their sudden [illegible] anxiety [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] fastest back on the [illegible] He has a [illegible] kick and runs [illegible] [illegible] He is a new [illegible] [illegible] and it is safe to predict that the new Horween attack will be centered about the handsome [illegible] before tomorrow.

[illegible] man as far as [illegible] [illegible] quick. He is a [illegible] [illegible] regime and this [illegible] year on the varsity.

He is a [illegible] sort of individual, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] seriously. Duke [illegible] [illegible] extraordinary. [illegible] batting Western form of [illegible] [illegible] with the [illegible] [illegible] Tripp has turned out [illegible]

LIFE OF THOMAS A. EDISON

(Authorized by Mr. Edison)

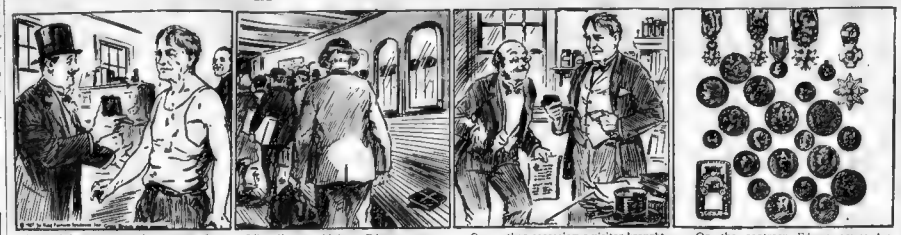
Text by Arthur Palmer
Drawings by Frank Kuchenmeister



A noted foreign scientific society decided to present Edison with a medal. A representative called at the laboratory in high hat and frock coat. Edison was in the midst of an important experiment. He was dirty and perspiring and stripped almost to the skin. After much persuasion he accepted the medal.

Like all great thinkers, Edison concentrates his thoughts intensely on whatever subject happens to be uppermost in his mind. He is oblivious to all surroundings—"absent-minded," as we commonly call it. In this state of mind he left a medal, which he had just received, on a New York ferryboat.

On another occasion, a visitor brought him a medal from one of the many organizations which have so honored him. Asked whether he had any others, Edison replied, "Oh, yes, I have a couple of quarts more up at the house." This would seem to indicate that Edison does not appreciate his honors, but—

On the contrary, Edison prizes his medals and tokens of esteem very highly. A few of these appear above. Besides the medals there is a beautiful cigar case from the Tzar of Russia, bronzes from the government of Japan, trophies from Krupp, and paintings by Sara Bernhardt.

Malt Syrup Is an Aid to Home Cooking

HOP-FLAVORED barley malt syrup is a product that can be used to great advantage in your own cookery.

Probably you've vaguely realized that barley hops and malt are highly nutritious and readily assimilated. But did you know that this hop-flavored barley malt syrup will add greatly to home-made white or rye bread, can be used to advantage in malted milk and candies, and, if mixed thoroughly with one quart of hot water, makes a syrup from which a delicious tonic may be made?

The malt tonic, due to the highly nutritious value of the substances contained in the syrup and also to the soothing and stimulating qualities of the fine hops in it, is excellent in restoring lowered vitality and in helping to build up a weakened constitution.

For well folks it is a valuable vitality-sustaining food in addition to being an ideal body-building tonic for tea-time dessert.

Health Bread—Six cups flour, three cups bran, two and one-half cups milk, one cup water, one and one-half tablespoons salt, one and one-half tablespoons butter, one tablespoon hop flavored barley malt syrup, one-quarter cup honey or table syrup, one and one-half cakes compressed yeast.

Have water warm and allow bran to steep in it for one hour. Have milk hot, stir in malt syrup, honey, butter and salt. Add the bran and water. When cool, add yeast dissolved in a little luke-warm water. Then stir in flour, mixing and kneading well. Let rise in warm place until light and spongy. Divide and form into loaves. Let rise again. Bake in medium oven.

White Bread—Six cups flour, two cups milk, one tablespoon salt, one tablespoon butter, one tablespoon hop-flavored barley malt syrup, one tablespoon sugar, one-half cake compressed yeast.

Have milk hot. Add sugar and malt syrup; then add water, hot. Stir in butter and salt. When cool, add yeast dissolved in a half cup luke-warm water, then stir in flour, mixing and kneading well. Let rise in a warm place. Divide and form into loaves on dusted board. Let rise again. Bake in hot oven.

Rye Bread—Four cups rye flour, two and one-third cups white flour, one cup milk, one and one-third cups water, one tablespoon salt, one tablespoon hop-flavored barley malt syrup, one cake compressed yeast.

Have milk hot. Add malt syrup; then add water, hot. Stir in salt. When cool, add yeast, dissolved in a little luke-warm water, then stir in rye flour and white flour (sifted together), mixing and kneading well. Let rise in warm place. Divide and form into loaves on dusted board. Let rise again. Bake well in hot oven.

Malted Milk—Two tablespoons hop-flavored barley malt syrup, one tablespoon sugar, four tablespoons (one-quarter cup) hot milk. Stir and work into a smooth, creamy mallow. Two cups rich milk, cold.

Put into a shaker and shake thoroughly. Flavor with vanilla, or top off with nutmeg or cinnamon. One or two eggs may be added before shaking if desired.

Yellow Jackets—Two cups sugar, ¾-pound table syrup, ½ pound hop-flavored barley malt syrup, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1½ cups water.

Boil the malt syrup in the water for several minutes. Add sugar and table syrup, and boil the mixture at 255 degrees to 258 degrees Fahrenheit, stirring continually; when drops of the candy form tough and firm (not hard), in cold water, remove from fire. Stir in vanilla. Pour on greased pans or greased paper. When cool, pull well, then cut into pieces.

Peanut Bar—One cup shelled peanuts, 1 cup maple sugar, ½ cup table syrup, 2 tablespoons hop-flavored barley malt syrup, 2 tablespoons butter, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ cup water

Boil sugar, table syrup, malt syrup, butter and salt in the water until drops of the candy form hard in cold water. Remove from fire, stir in peanuts, and pour on greased pans. When cool cut into bars.

Scotch Lassie—Two cups sugar, two cups table syrup, 2 tablespoons hop-flavored barley malt syrup, 3 tablespoons butter, ½ teaspoons salt, ¼ cup water.

Boil sugar, table syrup, malt syrup, butter and salt in the water until drops of the candy form hard in cold water. Pour on greased pans or greased paper. When cool, cut into desired shapes.

Faithfully,
MARTHA LEE.

The LIFE and LETTERS of WOODROW WILSON

BY RAY STANNARD BAKER.

Early Phases of Clash Over the Princeton Graduate College

IN order to comprehend clearly the bitter controversy of later years at Princeton, it will be necessary at this point, as indeed it is interesting, to look into the earlier phases of the struggle for a graduate college. It will be seen how early the seeds of dissension were strewn, and how they grew, at least at first, out of the circumstances, not at all out of personal rivalry.

Princeton had long had a graduate school, but not a graduate college to house it. The distinction is important. West's interest for years had been in building a "college" or "quadrangle." At the Sesquicentennial in 1896—when Wilson delivered his first great educational address, "Princeton in the Nation's Service"—West advanced the project of a residential graduate college to accommodate the students of the graduate school. President Patton voiced his approval and architects were even authorized to make plans for the buildings, which were to be upon the grounds of the university.

Wilson was one of a faculty committee of four which later prepared a forceful petition to the trustees urging the necessity of a strong graduate college to build up the prestige and influence of Princeton. The presence of a strong body of graduate students, the committee argued, would promote "intellectual seriousness" among the undergraduates. Even at this early time Wilson's idea of complete unity between graduate and undergraduate work, with one intimately influencing the other, was thus clearly set forth.

But everything drifted under Patton's administration, and years elapsed by with nothing done. In 1900, however, N. Taylor Pyne, one of the most energetic and generous of the trustees, a great friend of West's, became chairman of the committee of the board and West was promptly invited down of the proposed graduate college.

There was nothing in the definition of his functions to show that he was in any respect subject to the authority of either the president or the faculty. While it seemed necessary to take this course in order to get anything whatever accomplished, the trustees were unwittingly sowing seeds of divided control of rival interests within the university, of decentralization, which were in later years to bear bitter fruit.

West took up his work with great energy. From the first he was deeply concerned about the question of a site for the new college. He urged upon the trustees' committee in March (1902), and again in May, the necessity of choosing a site "which will help toward securing endowment."

In June, 1902, Wilson was elected president of Princeton University and Dean West received an appropriation ($5,500) for use in making a trip to Europe to study methods of housing graduate students. The two men were thus launched upon their administrative careers at Princeton, one to head the university, the other to build up the graduate college, in the same month—and with no clear definition of their respective powers and duties. Any one of the able business men on the board of trustees would have perceived instantly such a tendency toward divided control in the conduct of his own affairs; it was not only overlooked but encouraged by those who directed Princeton University.

Was Fairly Bristling With Ideas From Europe

It is plain that at this time everyone understood that the graduate college was to be located on the campus "at the heart of Princeton," where there might be frequent and intimate relationships between graduate and undergraduate students, the graduate to formulate and set the pace for the whole university. In the beginning West himself clearly entertained this idea. As West and Hibben wrote in October, 1909:

"Before this plan was instituted and tried we were clearly of the opinion that the graduate college would be located at least in the immediate contiguity to the central campus, preferably on what is known as the Olden tract, for the reason that the choice of a site at some distance raised the question as to whether residential separateness might not tend to separateness in institutional and intellectual development and thus make difficult the maintenance of the intimate unity, benefcent interaction and close sympathetic relation of the graduate college with the university proper."

When he faced homeward in December, 1903, he was fairly bristling with European ideas and ideals.

He drew up a persuasive report, formulating his plans, in January, 1903. Wilson added a preface consisting of a paragraph from his report to the trustees, October 21, 1902, with a few changes. The important thing in this preface was Wilson considered it, was West's complete approval of his ideal of a graduate college set "at the heart of Princeton."

At this time and during the next two years Wilson and the entire faculty, indeed everyone in any way interested in Princeton, were engaged in the arduous and exciting labor of reorganizing the university—building firms from the bottom, according to the orderly plans that Wilson had outlined. Every one, including Dean West, understood that undergraduate problems must first be solved before the superstructure of a graduate school could be considered.

"I am, of course, convinced that the undergraduate interests are our first and necessary concern, and that all else should give way to this consideration. It is also clear there can be no strong Graduate School in Princeton except as it rests on a strong undergraduate foundation. If, therefore, the exclusive choice between undergraduate and graduate interests becomes necessary, I think the Graduate School ought to be sacrificed," wrote Dean West in his report of December 5, 1903.

On October 20, 1904, Grover Cleveland, who was to become a considerable factor in the coming controversy, was made chairman of the trustees' committee on the graduate school, and began to exert his great power and prestige in pushing West's proposals. West and Cleveland had been warm personal friends since 1896.

They had many interests in common. It was West who succeeded in getting Cleveland to attend the Sesquicentennial in 1896; Cleveland found so much charm in the lovely old village that he decided to make his home there when the cares of office were laid aside in March, 1897. It was largely through West that he secured one of the old estates in Princeton, and as a mark of his appreciation and regard for West, named it "Westlands."

Cleveland had no especial knowledge of educational problems in general and none whatever of those at Princeton when he moved to the village, but he became the Stafford Little lecturer on public affairs, and in 1901, the same year that West took up his duties as dean, Cleveland was elected a trustee of the university.

With the powerful support of Cleveland and Pyne—with whom West was also upon terms of intimate friendship—the plans for the graduate college began to develop more hopefully. And at the same time there was increasing signs of divergence—a separation of interest. Many things, scarcely perceptible at the time, but clear enough now in the records and letters, indicate that West was beginning to seek control for himself, to draw away from the class unity of interest and influence which was the lifeblood of Wilson's program.

On June 12, 1905, at the very meeting of the Board at which Wilson's exceptional system was formally adopted, West reported that he had at last found suitable quarters for the graduate college. Largely through the generosity of M. Taylor Pyne, he had been promised Merwick, the former residence and grounds of Professor Raymond on Bayard Lane.

The house was large enough to accommodate comfortably at least twelve students in residence and as many more at the dining table. There were eleven acres of grounds about the place, devoted to lawn and gardens—a beautiful spot only a short walk from the campus, yet outside of it.

Obtains Subscriptions for Beginning the Work

He had obtained subscriptions of $6,700 to begin the work, Mr. Cleveland's name heading the list with $100 a year for three years.

Merwick was opened as a temporary graduate college on September 21, 1905—in the same months that the preceptorial system was also being launched. Wilson approved the project—believing that it would prove a "quite prophecy of the graduate college for which we so eagerly hope." It was to fill the gap until the foundation of the undergraduate work could be made secure and orderly and they could obtain the real endowment—some $3 000 000—for a graduate college "at the heart of Princeton."

Such were the conditions, and the growing perplexities and rivalries at the close of the year 1905. Thus far Wilson's clear and bold program for the co-ordination of the university, its development according to an harmonious plan, aimed at a single great purpose, had met with astonishing success.

But the first glorious impetus was the powerful new interests, which Wilson considered decentralizing and inharmonious, were crowding forward. His own innovations, the preceptorial system was also beginning to accomplish all that he had dreamed. His "ideal university" was still remote, his vision still unrealized.

The year 1906 was the crisis of his presidency at Princeton.

In the midst of the troubles at Princeton, as will be seen in tomorrow's chapter, Woodrow Wilson became a national figure and was first mentioned as a possible candidate for the presidency of the United States.

BABY VAMP'S POPULARITY DOESN'T LAST

HE USUALLY WEDS THE TRUSTWORTHY GIRL

By Beatrice Fairfax
An Authority on the Problems of Love and Marriage.

FRIENDSHIPS are constantly being broken up by jealousy and vampire tricks. And, on the other hand, love has more than once sacrificed itself on the altar of friendship.

How to adjust friendship and love

"Marge loves Philip. Marge and I go to a school and Philip calls for us after our class. From school we usually go to Kitty's home.

"Yesterday a friend of Kitty's was there and he took us out for a ride in his car. That's where the trouble started.

"Philip was at my side all through the ride. Finally I told him he was to take Marge home. This he did. Marge called me up later and told me that Philip wished to invite me out that evening. This I knew was true, because he had asked me.

"I told her I couldn't be bothered with Philip—that she had better go with him. I could tell she was crying as she hung up.

"Maybe I was very jealous of me. I didn't blame her, for I certainly would be angry with her if she did what I did—took away my 'boy friend.'

"I like to kid men along, just to see how hard they fall. I don't have to take Marge's friends away from her. And I don't want to lose Marge or break up our friendship because of Philip. He doesn't mean a thing to me, but he does mean much to Marge. Please help me. "BABE."

Kidding young men along to see how hard they fall" is a dangerous and unkind pastime, Babe—dangerous because, by the law of the boomerang, one of these days you yourself are likely to fall in love with some victim, of your vamping, only to find he doesn't care a "hang" and has been "kidding" you.

I need not explain why your flirting is unkind.

Instead of breaking up friendships and frittering away your emotions on silly flirtations, keep all your love for the One Man. Vamping brings at best cheap thrills. You will find it infinitely more wonderful and truly thrilling to be adored by one worthwhile man to inspire and bless him as his sweetheart, fiancee and wife

West's tour of inspection of English and Continental universities in the Summer of 1903 made a tremendous impression upon him. The life at Oxford, imposing buildings and striking effects gripped him completely. His letter to Wilson, October 4, from that place has quoted in it four chapters of "Tom Brown at Oxford."

The Magician Princeton had charmed him. "By moonlight, what a dream in silvery grays and whites!" The universities of Europe, rich in tradition, pure in architecture and lovely to visit, thrilled him, too.

precious England." Nan murmured, setting down her cup. "I stepped myself in local color via Jane Austen and Archibald Marshall. They write perfect patterns for a country squire's wife, and I try to embroider my feeble character in accordance."

"Feeble character indeed," Travers said indignantly, his boy's eyes dwelling proudly on his young wife. "Why Nan's got an absolutely iron character. I trust Nan to judge of men and women, she has a paragon of the stronger virtues."

"I wish you wouldn't admire me quite so extravagantly, dear," Nan said rather whitfully. "'Tis a dreadful trial to live up to your blindness in such a fashion. Really, you will happen—to disappoint us."

The queer intensity of her tone stirred Travers, and he looked up surprised, mumbling. "Oh . . . I say, you know . . ."

Nan took the sting away by resuming blithely: "We're wandering from my argument. John, you silly angel, you respectable model of commonsense, what do you read?"

"Oh, nothing that's considered worthy these days. I like the old chaps . . . Scott . . . Dickens . . . You see?" Triumphantly. "Romance. Sentimentality. There you have it, just as I said. Not what do you suppose Geoffrey reads?"

"Statistics on fruit-farming, probably. A friend suggested with a grin.

"Not at all. Blood and thunder for Geoffrey. Detective stories. Tales of murder and robbery. Things interesting, oh appalling, impossible things happening on every page. And the answer—why? could be simpler? Nothing ever happens here."

"Oh that's putting it rather harshly, isn't it?" asked Estabrook, stretching out his legs. "All sorts of things . . . the Alderney having a calf and the trees burst out into flower. Geoffrey and I fighting to the death on the tennis court every morning. What ho—" he pointed his hand at a road which showed a looped ribbon of golden brown, over the crest of a hill, perhaps a mile away. "Why, that crosses the road from Lynton, doesn't dear Nan. You can't possibly guess what will come down it. It's such an astonishing world. It doesn't do to lay guarantees even on dullness. Almost anything may happen."

"Oh, not here." There was a curious insistence in Nan's voice. "Say the road does cross the Highway? Nobody ever turns into it except for a short cut to Blackwell Abbey. If you'll believe it, John, I know every cart that passes and they're the same week in and week out."

Lord Travers, stood up, and, pacing behind his wife's chair brushed her shining head lightly with his hand. "I dare say it is dull, Nancy," he said quietly. "But next Winter . . . we'll go and have a gay time of it in London. She'll be all shape. Nothing happens here. It must be internally so."

Nan got up abruptly, and contradicted with a singular, agitated air that trembled on her red mouth: "Slow? Don't be an ass, Jack, darling, I simply adore it. I love the sameness, the security. I wouldn't have anything happen for the world. The peace . . . Oh it's heaven . . . it's so . . . so safe." She broke off, laughing uneasily. "Forgive me for being silly all of you. But I love our home so—I'm afraid I get rather emotional about it—especially when old Geoffrey thinks I'm pining for the gay life of London, I'm going in. I promised to talk to Mrs. Wudge about the strawberry preserve. I'll be back." With that she walked across the terrace with a quick, firm tread, but Estabrook had noted to his astonishment that tears trembled on her lashes. He said:

"By George, she means it, Geoffrey. She is so of nothing but peace—keeping it, you know. She's changed so since she was a kid. I was a-we afraid she'd be wild."

"I say, look, no toward the hill, Effellows. I believe Joan's turning into quite a prophet!"

"By Jove, one couldn't mistake that for a country cart, could one?" "Looks like a car to me. That aluminum front makes a terrible glare in the sun." Estabrook's hand shaded his eyes. Seem to have stopped. Can you see whether that's someone getting out?"

The strange car parked on the hill engrossed them for a few moments but it was too distant, and with the sun in their eyes they could distinguish nothing. The conversation, swinging to plans for some clay pigeon shooting on the morrow, was interrupted by the sight of a tall man in tweeds, the sun shining on his bare blonde head, who approached them from the side of the grounds nearest the hill. Travers stood up.

"Someone from that motor, I'll wager. Probably out of gas." He met the stranger half way down the rolling lawn. His voice floated back. "Can I help? Send chauffeur down to tow it in. Wretched things, axles." Murmur of thanks. Then they were coming up the stone steps to the terrace. "The stranger was speaking of being a nuisance, dreadful sorry . . . embarrassing to trouble . . ."

Arbelard was rising, adjusting his monocle, stuttering in amazement. "Bobby the Lord—Scarlett."

And Scarlett, grinning amiable surprise. "You here! Of all the odd coincidences—just to meet for years and then like this." While Estabrook struggled with a vaguely unpleasant recollection, and Lord Travers gave vent to his amazement at the accidental meeting, Scarlett explained his axle had broken. He'd come to the only place in sight; hadn't any idea who's house it was. Arbelard settled the question by presenting their host. At once Scarlett was all smiles and delight, asserting "Proud, Sir—proud. I had the pleasure of knowing your wife . . . when she was Nan Estabrook."

John, hearing his name, glanced darkly at the stranger. Surely he had met him somewhere . . . disliked him too. But he was ready to swear he'd not received the fellow in his house. Known Nan indeed . . . damned cheek. But Travers appeared pleased . . . just the thing to cheer Nan . . . country dull . . . She'd be— A movement at the long windows. Travers explaining: "Nan, here's an old friend dropped out of the clouds especially to disprove our dullness. Now we dare you tell Mr. Scarlett that nothing ever happens!" Then puzzled: "Nan—Nancy! What's the matter?"

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Formal Wedding

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN

I. At my church wedding I want to wear a veil. The groom wishes to wear a dark business suit. Please tell me what time of the day our wedding should take place, in order that we might be dressed suitable to the hour.

2. Is there a particular way to word a letter asking my cousin to be my bridesmaid?

3. Is it during the best judgment to send the groom's brother a letter asking him to be our best man?

4. Should the letter paper be folded in three, or is this the proper way? I just fill the large envelope folded three times.

M.

I WISH that I could answer that question, dear girl, for I am always sorry to have to tell brides that when they choose to wear a veil, they are bound to have a "formal," and therefore, to be consistent with that formality, the groom must wear formal attire. You see, if you figure it out, it does seem inappropriate for the bride to wear a white dress and veil and for such a formally-dressed bride to meet at the altar a bridegroom attired in that informal outfit, a business suit. For a formal day wedding he should, to be "in tune" with your bridal finery, wear a cutaway coat and dark striped trousers, and for an evening wedding, a dress suit.

2. No, just write her a friendly little note telling her that you wish to have her for your attendant.

3. Yes.

4. I guess that with such a large envelope it was meant to be folded in three. However, to the double sheet is more attractive, don't you think so?

LADIES! DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is mussy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, for only 75 cents. It can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

Well-known druggists say it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark and glossy.

Salient Points of the Play

Tricks 2 and 3. Declarer takes two rounds of trumps, reserving one trump in Dummy with which to ruff a losing Heart.

Trick 4. The Club finesse having won, he later is assured of a small slam, making but one losing card, a Diamond, on a bad break. A successful finesse in Diamonds will give him a Grand Slam. But if the Clubs are very stiff it will not be necessary to take the finesse, since the losing Diamond can be discarded on the long Club. Declarer determines therefore first to establish the Club situation, leaving the Diamond finesse as a method in reserve for the possible making of the Grand Slam. Accordingly Declarer leads the Ace of Clubs.

Trick 10. Clubs not splitting, Declarer ruffs a Club in Dummy to his own hand for the second Diamond finesse.

Trick 11. The Diamond finesse failing, Declarer makes but a small slam.

When You Catch Cold Rub On Musterole

Musterole is easy to apply and works right away. It may prevent a cold from turning into "flu" or pneumonia. It does all the good work of grandmother's mustard plaster.

Musterole is a clean, white ointment, made of oil of mustard and other home simples. It is recommended by many doctors and nurses. Try Musterole for sore throat, cold on the chest, rheumatism, lumbago, pleurisy, stiff neck, bronchitis, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back and joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet—colds of all sorts.

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

ONE fellow's tie was so bright he had to wear smoked glasses.

HE wore a diamond stick pin with a reflector on his Adam's apple.

WHENEVER he went out at night he had to use dimmers.

HE buys checkered shirts so that he can make up cross-word puzzles while he's waiting for the laundryman.

ONE college boy painted his bulldog green and told everybody it was an Irish terrier.

HIS sweater was so gaudy, the landrady always heard him coming in at night.

HE worked his way through school by painting red stripes on his wooden leg and leasing it to barber shops.

HIS limbs brought him money, but he couldn't get a dime with his head.

YOU'LL always see him in high shoes. He's a Cambridge man and won't wear Oxfords.

HE'S never worn spats since his chiropodist called them ankle kimonos.

HE doesn't dress any differently in the Winter than he does in the Summer, except that when the weather is cold, he carries two canes.

WHEN it comes to style, America hasn't many fashion plates, but we've certainly got plenty of chafing dishes.

THE MEDITATIONS OF A WIFE

By HELEN ROWLAND.

BEFORE you do it, ask yourself "Is it cricket?"

A thoroughbred is a man who knows instinctively what IS and what ISN'T "cricket." That's all.

He may be a billionaire, a ballplayer, a poet or a prize-fighter—but he is never a bounder. He may wear an opera hat or overalls, carry a swagger-stick or a spade—but he always carries his "code"! And his code is "Play the game!"

Even in this day and degeration, when most morals and all manners are beginning to be classed with hoopskirts, bustles and pompadours, there is such a thing as "cricket"!

What IS cricket?

Cricket is fair play! Cricket is good breeding. Cricket is something finer than mere honesty, more delicate that a sense of honor, and harder to explain than a French irregular verb.

Even in love as in war where "all is fair," there is always cricket—yea even amongst vamps and petters and cake-eaters and sheiks! Just as there is honor amongst thieves.

"It isn't cricket." Cherie, to let one man pay for the tickets, the roses, the taxi and the supper, and then spend all your evening flirting with another man.

It isn't cricket, Big Boy, to take a woman out to dinner, and make her look foolish by casting admiring glances at all the other women present, or flirting with another girl behind her back.

It isn't cricket to accept gifts expensive attentions and devotions from one man, and then to give your dances and your kisses to another man.

It isn't cricket to hold your husband up to ridicule or to belittle your wife before others, no matter how much you may hate or love him or her.

It isn't cricket to flatter one woman by speaking disparagingly of another woman; or to tickle one man's vanity by breaking a date with another man.

It isn't cricket to borrow money that you are not certain you can return. Or to sue for alimony after two weeks of wedded bliss.

Or to bully a waiter, because you know that he can't answer back. Or to kiss-and-tell. Or to hit-and-run!

You may be awfully modern and "hard-boiled" and hot for "individualism"—and all that sort of bunk. You may not believe in romantic love or old fashioned chivalry. But down in their heart of hearts, every man and every woman wants to be a THOROUGHBRED.

Cricket is being a Thoroughbred!

CAN YOU CONTROL YOUR EXPRESSION ALWAYS?

By J. J. MUNDY.

ONE of the best lessons one can learn is control of facial expression.

The man who looks discouraged, devoid of vigor and aggressiveness and as if he had lost confidence in himself, stands little chance of gaining advancement.

It is hard to keep a cheerful exterior when things go wrong.

It is hard to look capable and confident when applying for a job, facing a new employer, perhaps, or if turned down, facing want.

But a favorable impression must be created, if possible.

You want someone to want your services.

And when you are being tested or appraised, as well as at all public appearances, much depends upon your facial expression.

You may feel discontented, unhappy, fearful, even ill—but not one bit of this should show in your face when you greet others.

Learn to conceal physical or mental pain.

No allowance is made for pain you may be suffering, in fact to show it counts against you. Control your face.

And today let us travel in our mind's eye to far off Lycopodia, with its touch of old world charm, where our Mister Frisby is shown teaching the native Muscovites how to cope with the dread lacelits which yearly takes a toll of more than any one is willing to admit.

BY MR. FRISBY

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Speaking before the local Kiwanis Club here yesterday, Horace Fillmore Frisby brought his hearers to their feet when, during his address, he paused to play "The Star Spangled Banner" on a portable phonograph.

Frisby has often been mentioned by himself as the logical candidate for Vice President.

Concluding, Mister Frisby said, in part: "After considerable investigation I have arrived at the conclusion that conditions as a whole are much better than they would be if they were worse than they now are."

Sure of Himself Now!

So Clean Inside, No Fear of Perspiration Offense, However Over-Heated

Once a person realizes the wonderful properties in cascara, no other laxative in the market would ever be considered.

It's no trick to "clean out the bowels" for cascara does more than that. But a little natural cascara purifies the system clear through. Cleanses even the pores of your skin. Renders perspiration as inoffensive as no man who ever lived before. The way was "safe." They get action, but they take the poisonous membrane along with the waste matter! Mineral oils are not additional, but they leave the bowels with a film of poisons for the body to carry off through the pores. But when you cascara for the bowels, you get rid of all the poisons by natural muscular action of the bowels.

If you have a habit of taking medicine for constipation, or even for an occasional one, stop it. For a candy cascaret is a delightful form in which to take cascara; children love them, and the taste tempts most grown-ups to have "more."

And what a comfort to know you are in that clean, wholesome condition that does away with any need of deodorants, even in warmest weather! Try a cascaret tonight—see how you feel next day, and for days after! With the skin fresh and fragrant. All druggists, 10c and 25c.

JOHNSON LAYS DOWN HIS LAW

Sets Up Twelve Rules Players of the Newark Club Will Follow Next Year

Baltimore, Oct. 28 (A.P.).—Walter Johnson, for 20 years star pitcher of the Washington Americans, pondering his new managerial job with the Newark International League club, has formed certain ideas and theories which he will try in the Spring. Here they are as printed in today's Baltimore News:

1. Every player must hustle every minute. No athlete who loafs will be kept in the lineup.

2. Every player will be treated individually. Those who need coaxing will be coaxed. Those who need driving will be invited to follow orders.

3. No player will be scolded for mechanical errors. They are part of the game.

4. No player will cheat with Walter Johnson's knowledge or consent. That is, pitchers will not be allowed to roughen the ball or use any substance to make the ball do tricks.

5. No roadyism or useless arguing with fans or umpires will be tolerated. Suspended athletes are a dead loss to the club.

6. Every player will be allowed, generally speaking, to use his own judgment until he proves he can't think for himself. This will apply to pitchers, base runners and others.

7. No player's natural batting or pitching style will be changed.

8. No attempt will be made by Johnson to signal for the various balls to be pitched, to give orders for every play.

9. Every player will be expected to practice to correct any weakness he shows.

10. Every player must obey orders and practice self-control.

11. Every player will be told to forget alibis and talk and think of victory. Believe in yourself is one of Walter's rules.

12. Fight every game as if the pennant depended upon it. But don't fight with players of your own club, no matter what the provocation.

DEERING HIGH WON'T ACCEPT FORFEITURE

Portland, Me., Oct. 28.—Carl Lundholm, former New Hampshire star and now coach at Deering High, will refuse to forfeit to Deering the Everett win. Deering lost the game by a 44 to 0 score.

"Deering was consistently outplayed by Everett and we could not be honest with ourselves and still accept a forfeiture," said Lundholm.

"The work of DiMotte was not the feature of the Everett attack that afternoon. The fact that the Everett captain was unknowingly over age should not affect the result at all. My hat is off to the sportsmanship of the Everett High School officials. They are sportsmen of the highest calibre."

DiMott Ineligible; Everett Forfeits Victories

Angelo DiMott, captain and star fullback on all-scholastic High School eleven, has been found to have been ineligible to represent the school on the gridiron by Principal Joseph A. Conroy. Dinny Gildea's undefeated team has forfeited its victories to Everett.

Medford High, which meets Everett tomorrow, protested that DiMott was over the legal age, the age limit for high school athletes.

Kilkelley May See Action in Yale Game Saturday

Hanover, N. H., Oct. 28.—During practice Leonard Kilkelley, the injured Green center, was in uniform.

He limbered up and then Hawley sent him in to relieve Gow near the close of the practice session. It looks now as if Gow would start his last game, but in all probability Kilkelley will see action Saturday if his injury permits.

THE BOSTON AMERICAN'S PLATFORM FOR BOSTON AND NEW ENGLAND

For BOSTON: 1—Clean streets.
2—Solution of traffic and parking problems.
3—Better pay for honest public service.
4—An airport SECOND TO NONE.

For NEW ENGLAND: 1—Weld the six States into a unit through the activities of the New England Council, thus creating a community consciousness.
2—Promote intercourse with Central and South America, encouraging New Englanders to "turn to the sea" again.
3—Keeping everlastingly at the job of telling the rest of the country all about our unique advantages as Summer and Winter Playground of the Nation.
4—Foster the prosperity of our industries through (1) greater efficiency in production and (2) the use of modern methods in merchandising.
5—Promote in every way such natural resources as forests, water powers and fisheries.
6—Assist New England agriculture to better marketing methods.

Gold Star Mothers

Let Them Have Travel Companions on Visit to Graves in France

The year 1928 will be just ten years after the close of the Great War which cost the lives of 78,000 American boys.

A bill is to be introduced in Congress by Representative Thomas S. Butler of Pennsylvania providing for the Government to pay the expenses of sending the American Gold Star Mothers to France to visit the last resting places of their sons.

There is every reason to believe that this legislation will pass. It should pass. It would be fitting and appropriate to have the Gold Star Mother pilgrimage in the month of May next year, so that on Memorial Day, May 30, they can bring their tribute of flowers and tears to the graves of their beloved ones.

Congressman Butler's bill properly provides a trip for unmarried widows as well as mothers of the fallen heroes. A further extension of the scope of the plan is worth considering. Eagerly as war mothers will desire to go, many of them will be deterred by fear of making such a distant and lengthy journey over sea. These fears would be removed or greatly diminished if each mother were privileged to take one companion, likewise at Government expense.

Generally the mother will choose as companion the father, if alive; otherwise a female relative. The average Gold Star Mother is at least sixty years old. It will be an act of kindness for the Government to see to it that she has congenial and consoling companionship from the day she leaves home until she returns.

Until the work was properly stopped, over 46,000 bodies of American soldiers were disinterred and returned to this country from France. The Government reports that the average cost of this transfer was at least $500 each, a total of nearly $35,000,000.

A tenth of this sum, namely, $2,500,000, would suffice to send to France the 2,000 Gold Star Mothers and unmarried widows who are figured as likely to go, and to send a companion with each mother.

The expenditure is insignificant, compared with the issue at stake, or measured against the relief and comfort which this sacred crusade would bring to American war mothers.

"Where's the Fire?"

Who NEEDS to Know?

The public authorities of Newton have set the officials of other cities a good example by their decision to sound no more alarms on "outside" bells.

A real necessity back in the days when fire departments were for the most part composed of "call," or part time firemen, the siren whistle and the big-bell-in-the-tower in many places have become not only a nuisance but a menace.

They summon, not the fireman, who has no need of them, but motorists seeking a "thrill." These crowds of curious motorists have been called the "worst single menace any fire department has to cope with."

This may be a good time for other cities to take a survey. Why bring to the scene of a fire an army of even well-meaning spectators? Why bring scores or hundreds of automobiles into the path of the fire apparatus?

If the fire department in your town or city is a "paid" department, or if "call" men are supplied with private tappers, put a muffler on the bell and make the days and nights of the invalid at least a little easier by breaking up the siren whistle, in the opinion of many not unreasonable folk, an invention of the Old Boy, himself.

Harvard Men

19,397 of Them in New England

One salutary and invigorating thought we get from the report of the survey made by the Harvard Fund Council, recently made public, is that there is no reason in the world why New England should not be the most cheerful, most hopeful and most optimistic corner of the U. S. A.

As we believe it is, except when gentlemen with ideas to sell arise at banquet tables to "view with alarm."

The figures show that of 47,992 living alumni there are 15,906 resident in Massachusetts, 793 in Maine, 642 in New Hampshire, 214 in Vermont, 852 in Rhode Island and 991 in Connecticut.

The total for New England is 19,397.

Add to these the great numbers of New Englanders who have come from Bowdoin, Dartmouth, Brown, Yale, Boston University, Boston College, Holy Cross, Tech, Tufts, Williams, Amherst, Middlebury, Bates, our colleges for women, our trade and technical schools and our normal schools and then TRY to imagine some community problem which these Six States could not solve.

The capacity for leadership suggested by the figures and the names mean success and prosperity.

And there is no getting around it!

Too Far

Even Cows Have Some Rights

The patient red-plush cow, baby's friend, has posed for the scientists and has done much as the heroine of clinics to solve the problems of proper feeding.

But now the limit has arrived, and if the cow were a mule she would make a kick. Pennsylvania State College scientists have placed a windowin a live cow's stomach so they can watch the processes by which she manufactures Vitamin B.

Personal liberty and even privacy are dead in this country. The goldfish has as much privacy as anybody. A self-respecting cow with a window in her stomach, with no shades to pull down, seems to go the limit in open living. The embarrassment of it should sour her milk.

But a cow is much like a taxpayer these days. Theirs not to make reply, theirs not to question why.

THE OTHER SIDE OF HAVING 'LUCK'

By DR. FRANK CRANE

EVERY once in a while you hear of a man who has been lucky, but you hardly ever hear of the thousands more that have been unlucky.

A man made several hundred thousands the other day gambling at Deauville. He put up a $4,000 chip, and while he stepped to the telephone for six or seven minutes his chip had increased in value until it was over $300,000. Some luck!

But the press account didn't tell you of probably the hundred other people that put up $4,000 chips and lost them all.

You heard of the man breaking the bank at Monte Carlo, but there is no special notice about the hundreds of suckers that lost there.

So when a man has a real estate proposition to make to you he tells you about other people that have made immense fortunes by buying land at a certain place and having it increase in value, but he doesn't tell you about other people who bought land and had it go floocy.

It is very interesting to have a promoter talk to you about making one hundred per cent. on your money within a few days.

The only way to be immune from this kind of lure is to make up your mind that you don't want one hundred per cent.

The bait which these get-rich-quick Wallingfords use is the desire that most people have to get something for nothing. If you are satisfied with small and reasonable profits on your capital you are not going to be tempted into fool investments.

It is all right to want to get rich quick—everybody may want this—but the high yield on most investments is accompanied with high risk. If you want to keep your capital and not go to the poorhouse, don't look for high rates of profit.

People should understand the fundamental law of money, that is, that great profits always mean insecurity. When you are buying a bond that yields you 8 per cent., the chances are even that you will not get your capital back. When you buy a municipal bond that yields 4½ per cent., you know that you will not only get the per cent. promised, but you will also receive your capital when it is due.

To be sure, Mr. Ford made astounding profits on his small investment, and General Motors and United States Steel have climbed high, also you could have bought American Telephone & Telegraph stock at a song some years ago and it is now worth $168. That is all true, but that is no reason for risking your small savings.

The only man who can afford to go into a venture with big profits offered is a rich man. Little craft should stay close to the shore.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

The Twenty-third Psalm

THE LORD IS MY SHEPHERD.

(Like some poor sheep I wander with the human flock not knowing why I am nor where I go. I cannot see God's face nor hear His voice for I am blind with ignorance and deaf with doubt and fear. Yet, as sheep feel the shepherd's guiding will, so do I feel a Force behind my life, and dimly sense a Purpose and a Plan. And when I falter, something in me cries—"Go on! You are not lost—the shepherd knows the fold to which you go.")

I SHALL NOT WANT.

(My body may know poverty and pain. But God has placed within me secret springs which shall sustain me when I'm poor and weak. I still have Beauty, when my gold is gone—and Friendship, when my pantry shelf is bare—and Courage, like red wine, to warm my soul.)

HE MAKETH ME TO LIE DOWN IN GREEN PASTURES: HE LEADETH ME BESIDE STILL WATERS.

(Earth pastures wither when the Winters come: earth waters dry when Spring time rains are done. But love has pastures which are ever green and Faith has fountains which no drought can seal.)

HE RESTORETH MY SOUL: HE LEADETH ME IN THE PATHS OF RIGHTEOUSNESS FOR HIS NAME'S SAKE.

(Two selves live in me, one a greedy brute, the other a bright stranger whom I call my Soul. And often the fierce brute drives out the Soul. But something draws it back to me again and turns my face once more to seek the Truth.)

YEA, THO I WALK THRU THE VALLEY OF THE SHADOW OF DEATH I WILL FEAR NO EVIL: FOR THOU ART WITH ME, THY ROD AND THY STAFF THEY COMFORT ME.

(There are so many deaths in every life. Death of our loved ones—death of cherished dreams—death of our pride and confidence and peace. Each day death's shadow falls across our path. But bright against the shadow blazes Hope! For always after night the morning comes, and always after Winter comes the Spring. And not one grain of sand is ever lost. Shall Man, alone, be wasted from God's hand?)

THOU PREPAREST A TABLE BEFORE ME IN THE PRESENCE OF MINE ENEMIES: THOU ANOINTEST MY HEAD WITH OIL: MY CUP RUNNETH OVER.

("Mine Enemies"—they are those foes that live in my own self—my hate and fear, my envy and conceit, how often they have won the victory! But when I catch a Vision of the truth and lift myself a little higher from the mire, then, for a time, I'm freed from my base self and know the pride and joy of some great conqueror.)

SURELY GOODNESS AND MERCY SHALL FOLLOW ME ALL THE DAYS OF MY LIFE AND I WILL DWELL IN THE HOUSE OF THE LORD FOREVER.

(My Father's house—that's not some strange, far place, but just this common world in which I spend my days. All of my hours are His arching rooms. My life is built into His living walls. All that I am or do is part of Him. His mercy comprehends my blundering. His goodness girds His weak and stupid child. I cannot go so far that He is left behind.

So, though I do not know the how or why, and though I never yet have seen His face, I need not fear. For where Life goes, I go, and Life is God. And I am part of His eternal Mystery.)

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

It is right for him who asks forgiveness for his offenses to grant it to others. —Horace.

The people become more observant of justice and do not refuse to submit to the laws when they see them obeyed by their enactors. —Claudianus.

REGARDING SOCIETY AND PHYSICS

By Garrett P. Serviss.

WHILE the mind is tied to the body it has to share the body's obedience to the great physical principle of inertia. Dr. E. B. Lindsay of Yale suggests that this principle which may be expressed as the reluctance to undergo change characterizing every physical body in the universe, has an application extending far beyond the bounds of the natural sciences; in other words it applies to social systems as well as to physical systems.

"Has it not often seemed strange," he writes in the scientific Monthly, "that all the movement toward social reform which most persons are now inclined to recognize as having benefited the human race were bitterly opposed, nay, often fought with tooth and nail? And does it not appear equally curious that the great political and ecclesiastical changes which have taken place in recorded history have in almost every case been at the expense of continual wars and untold bloodshed? Yet these are but illustrations of the generalized principle of inertia."

The great tendency of science today is toward generalization, and generalization, no doubt, may be made subservient to loose speculation outside the legitimate limits of scientific procedure. Hasty and unsound generalizations have wrecked many a theory. Mental power resembles radiant energy in that its intensity varies inversely with the distance; perhaps even with the square of the distance: that is to say, with the area covered. But Dr. Lindsay's idea of the application of the inertial principle to human affairs seems to ring true, and it derives from it some conclusions comforting to those who are sufficiently conservative to not desire to see reform brought about by cataclysm.

Friends of the age-old institution of the family will welcome the suggestion that, though as a social system it is today in "a state of great instability," yet such radical blows at the family as the theoretical movement in Russia to abolish marriage altogether are encountering, because of the principle of social inertia, a resistance among the people showing that "the family is not yet dead, nor will it wholly die, though a modification of the institution may be looking place which will result, after the manner of all nature's changes, in a genuine evolution."

As Dr. Lindsay remarked, "Everyone must have noticed that it is harder to open a heavy revolving door rapidly than it is if one is content to do it slowly. Likewise, in social phenomena, the more radical and impetuous the reform sought the greater is the opposition aroused and the more difficult it is to overcome this opposition."
